U. S. Proposes, NO, says France.
Gov. Smith's Prescription.
Woman's Devotion.
No More Champions.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PRESIDENT HOOVER yesterday proposed cutting world armaments one-third, and read his suggestion to newspaper men in the White House with Secretary of State Stimson beside him.

That plan would save about fifteen billion dollars during the next ten years. But it can't be done. France immediately says NO. She has what she wants and knows that the way to keep what she has is to be prepared to defend it.

SENATOR BORAH, head of foreign affairs, approves the President's proposal. Prime Minister Herriot of France says it is "entirely unacceptable." Sir John Simon, for England, demands that the use of submarines be abolished. England owns a great floating commerce.

OUR FOREIGN friends will probably force upon us the wise course, which is to provide for this country such protection as it needs without consulting foreigners.

The right fighting air and submarine fleets, constantly strengthened and improved, would make us indifferent to opinions or moods of other nations. And such modern protection need not cost nearly as much as we spend on inadequate protection now.

FORMER GOV. SMITH, asked whether he would bolt the Democratic party if Gov. Roosevelt were nominated, replies:

"Why go into that now?"

His prescription for Democratic victory is this:

"Write an honest, straightforward platform, and nominate me."

There is no doubt that Gov. Smith is a candidate on his own account.

IMPRESSIVE IS woman's devotion. When Von Plehve, Russian statesman, was killed by a Nihilist bomb, the wife of a French attache, "who had conceived a violent passion for Von Plehve," wept for weeks because she had not been killed with him.

And you know about the Roman matron. When her husband was ordered by the judges to commit suicide, and lacked courage, she seized the dagger and to encourage him, plunged it into her own heart, saying:

"It does not hurt."

AND NOW, in New York City, comes a model for all wives. She lives on Fifth avenue, near the Central Park Zoological Gardens, and her husband's sleep is disturbed by a great lion's roaring. The lady appeared before Park Commissioner Herrick, saying:

"Put your own price on that lion and I will buy it. I want to let my husband have the satisfaction of shooting it."

No sale.

SEVENTY THOUSAND high-spirited Americans, including governors of states, mayors of great cities, charming ladies, watched the Sharkey-Schmeling prize fight on Tuesday, paying from $2.30 to $23 (reduced prices in honor of the depression) for their seats. Four hundred and twenty-nine thousand dollars was the total amount paid for the pleasure of watching two men fight through fifteen rounds of three minutes each.

Schmeling had won the time before on a foul. Good business and the "fifty-fifty" idea demanded that Sharkey should win this time, thus insuring big receipts for the NEXT fight. Mayor Walker, on the radio, told Berlin that Schmeling, German, should have had the decision. Experts confirm that.

Neither man really won, for neither was strong enough to injure seriously anyone but a woman or child. The late John L. Sullivan, before he decided to beat the champion of champions, ALCOHOL, would have disposed of Sharkey and Schmeling in the same evening, with a maximum of two or three rounds apiece.

Bob Fitzsimmons, a professional fighter, not a professional talker, would have taught those two gentlemen a great deal about fistic astronomy and would have beaten either of them easily.

But a population in which brutality survives, into adult life, must be content with an imitation championship, since there are no champions available.

MANY AMERICANS were among visitors in Dublin attending the Eucharistic Congress opening. The spirit of reverence was apparent, crowds in the streets kissed the hem of the robe of the Pope's personal representative as he passed.

The Catholic Church is an ancient institution that endures, patient, far-seeing. Early in this century, the German chancellor, Von Bulow, was told by the Italian prime minister, Giolitti, that the visit of the French prime minister to Rome and the Italian King, "completely ignoring the Vatican," settled for all time any possibility of the Pope's regaining temporal power, or any rulership in a temporal domain.

But that temporal power is regained and temporal rule in Vatican City exists today. Pope Pius, whom Von Bulow describes as a quiet, peaceful country priest, carries on the traditions of the Vatican.

'INSIDE' HELP SUSPECTED BY POLICE HEAD

Clark Suggests Someone Was 'Greased;' Hopes to Solve Getaway Mystery

Donald Doane, alias Ernest Abbott, 26, St. Louis convict who sawed his way to freedom from a cell in Central Station here April 24, has been arrested in Muskogee, Okla., Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd was notified today.

Word of Doane's arrest came from the Massachusetts State Prison at Charlestown where Doane escaped last July while serving a 7-to-14-year term for highway robbery.

SUSPECTS 'GREASING'

Commenting today on Doane's escape, Public Safety Director James M. Clark said:

"On the face of it it looks as if somebody might have been 'greased.'"

About the capture, the director said:

"As soon as I find out where I can get in touch with that fellow, I think I'll send somebody down to see him to find out just how he did get out of No. 1. He is a pretty slick criminal. We got a report from Inspector Beebe on that, but that doesn't show anything. Somebody must have been at fault. Nobody has been punished, because we do not know who is at fault."

BACK TO CHARLESTOWN

Doane was being returned to Charlestown to finish the sentence there. He has been indicted here for larceny, and at the end of his term in Charlestown will be turned over to local authorities, Boyd was informed.

His record reveals he escaped from an Illinois prison at Vandalia, and the Granite City Jail in Illinois.

DETAILS NOT KNOWN

The details of his arrest in Muskogee were not revealed. The Massachuetts Prison had offered a $1,000 reward for his capture.

Doane was the first escape from Central Station. According to the report there, Doane sawed the bars of his cell and a window, leaped 25 feet to the roof of the station to a garage, climbed through another window into the station mezzanine, and sped out the Water street entrance.

He had been arrested at a pawn shop in Liberty avenue where police say he attempted to redeem a watch which had been reported stolen.

2 JOBLESS MEN END LIVES HERE

Baffled by long, futile hunts for work, two men ended their lives early today, police reported, one—a civil engineer and Princeton graduate—by drowning, and the other by shooting.

River Patrolman Charles Snyder was dragging the rivers for the body of a man believed to be J. H. Largo, 30, Princeton graduate, who plunged to his death from Manchester Bridge.

A hat and coat found on the bridge railing by Harold Noll, of 3 Grace street, Mt. Washington, revealed the alleged suicide. The clothing was identified by Mrs. Thomas Holly, of 44 Thomas street, Crafton, as belonging to her son, Largo, who returned to Pittsburgh yesterday from Long Island.

A letter addressed to Mrs. Holly, and telling of a fruitless search for work, was found in the coat. The letter had not been mailed.

Missing since 9 a. m. yesterday, Anthony Adobbate, 35, a lodger at 6419 Shetland avenue, was found dead in bed early today, a bullet wound in his heart. The body was found by Joseph Longo, proprietor of the rooming house, who said a revolver lay at his side.

Among the nine American matrons and debutantes who were to curtsey to the royal family tonight was Miss Joan Diehl, of Pittsburgh.

MAN JAILED IN SWINDLE OF HEIRESS

Suspect in $117,000 Fraud Accused by Miss Beeson; Caught After 18 Months

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP.)—A middle-aged, perfectly tailored man was arrested today after a search of 18 months on a charge of swindling Kathryn K. Beeson, formerly of Uniontown and Pittsburgh, out of $117,000.

Miss Beeson, accompanied by an attorney, called at police headquarters today. Police said she had identified the prisoner as the man who swindled her in 1930.

Police charged he was Frank C. Delpinrie and that he and his confederates had acquired about $4,000,000 in swindling activities in the last 10 years. The man, however, insisted his name was Frank P. Davis.

'POCKETBOOK' TRICK

Miss Beeson, who was said to have inherited two or three million dollars from relatives connected with the Pittsburgh Steel Company, was a victim of the so-called pocketbook swindle in November, 1930. She was seated in a restaurant in Newark, N. J., and, police alleged, Delpinrie and a confederate were at a nearby table. Delpinrie is said to have picked up a pocketbook a confederate dropped, and showed its contents to Miss Beeson. It contained what appeared to be a large sum in money and securities.

The man, police said, had Miss Beeson accompany him to the address given on a card in the pocketbook to return it to the owner, and when the owner offered a large reward Delpinrie declined it and then was given a tip on a stock. The result, according to police, was that Miss Beeson borrowed $177,000 on securities and turned it over to Delpinrie to buy stock on the tip.

BROTHER STEEL OFFICIAL

Miss Beeson is a descendant of the Beeson family that founded Uniontown. For years her family has been identified with the steel industry in Western Pennsylvania.

A call to the home of Charles E. Beeson, of 432 Morewood avenue, brought the information that Miss Kathryn K. Beeson, a sister, was now residing in New York City. Beeson is vice president of the Pittsburgh Steel Company.

Grand Duke Boris Robbed of Jewel

BELLEVUE, AISNE, France, June 23.—(AP.)—Grand Duke Boris, of Russia, cousin of the late Czar, has been the victim of a $4,000 jewel theft at his villa here, it was learned today.

The booty included a gold diamond-studded brooch, which was once the property of the Czar's sister.

FIGHT 'FIX' HINT STIRS RING FANS

Board May Demand Jacobs Prove Charges of Fraud; Indignation World-Wide

By SID MERCER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 23.—A wave of outspoken indignation and resentment at the manner in which Max Schmeling was deprived of the world heavyweight championship by Jack Sharkey Tuesday night swept over the entire country and broke in New York with a violence that will not abate for some time to come.

The astounding decision, carried by radio, cable and telegraph wires to all parts of the world, brought a response in the form of a deluge of sympathetic messages to the dethroned champion from hundreds of persons unknown to him.

DEMAND RETURN FIGHT

Other wires and cables were directed to the Madisan Square Garden management and boxing officials, protesting against the recognition of Sharkey as champion and demanding that the German fighter be given an immediate return match.

The New York Athletic Commission will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow, at which it is not unlikely that Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, will be called upon to present proof of his claim that he knew in advance that Sharkey would win if the bout went the limit and Gunboat Smith, former heavyweight contender, was in the ring in the capacity of referee.

The fight and its amazing climax were hotly discussed on every New York street corner, in homes, clubs, offices and other places

DIEGEL LEADS IN OPEN GOLF

FRESH MEADOW COUNTRY CLUB, Flushing, N. Y., June 23.—(AP.)—Leo Diegel shot a sparkling round of 73, three over par, in a stiff wind today to take the lead for the first 18 holes of the American open golf championship.

Gene Sarazen, the British open king, and Jose Jurado, Argentine star, had 74 each, and Billy Burke, the defending champion, was one stroke further back with a 75.

Ted Luther, pro at the Valley Heights Country Club, Oakmont, Pa., had a 78, George Von Elm a 79 and MacDonald Smith an 80. T. Phillip Perkins, former British amateur champion, had a 76, and T. Miyamoto, open champion of Japan, an 82.

Bobby Jones and approximately 1,000 other fans trailed Sarazen and Burke around the course. Four withdrawals reduced the field to 144.

Walter Hagen came in with a 75 to tie with Burke, and Vincent Eldred, Highland Country Club, Pittsburgh, carded 39-39—78 to match Luther's figures.

Dynamite Found At Barbecue Stand

County detectives today were investigating the finding of 12 sticks of dynamite early yesterday on the porch of the Sunset barbecue, on the William Penn highway, three miles east of Wilkinsburg. David A. Walthour, of 913 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, employed by a ginger ale company, reported that he and a fellow employe found the dynamite wrapped in a newspaper.

45 Patients Saved In Hospital Fire

BENNINGTON, Vt., June 23.—(AP.)—Fire, following an explosion, swept the Putnam Memorial Hospital here this afternoon. Forty-five patients were removed by firemen amid scenes of confusion.

Because of the location of the institution on the tip of a high hill it was difficult to get streams of water on the burning structure.

The Land of the Free And The Home of the Brave

A Catechism—By W. R. Hearst

WHAT IS GOING on in Chicago next week?

Some gentlemen are going to convene there who call themselves Democrats.

What do you mean,—"Call themselves Democrats?" Aren't they Democrats?

Well, they are going to begin by repudiating the rule of the majority, which is the fundamental principle of democracy everywhere.

Aren't these gentlemen in Chicago going to carry out the will of the people?

Not if it finds expression in a majority for any one candidate.

Well, how are candidates nominated in this so-called Democratic convention?

Unless there is an absolute two-thirds majority, a minority can hold out and prevent the nomination of any candidate favored by a majority of the people.

But isn't the Democratic party supposed to represent the people?

It is.

It is.

It is.

Well, who elects a majority of the delegates?

Just the plain people.

Well, who controls the obstructive minority?

The high financiers.

Uhum! Well, who then will nominate the candidate of the Democratic party?

The high financiers.

Who has nominated the candidate of the Republican party?

The high financiers.

Then who will control the next President?

The high financiers.

Then what kind of a republic is this?

It's that kind of a republic.

And what kind of Democrats are assembling in Chicago?

Just that kind of Democrats.

And what kind of Republicans assembled in Chicago a week ago?

The same kind of Republicans.

GOSH! WHY DON'T we have genuine popular government? Wouldn't that be good for the country?

We don't know. We haven't tried it of late years.

Is government by high finance good for the country?

You ought to know just how good it is. You are living in this country.

Anyhow, maybe people like government by high finance.

Well, if they like this kind of thing, then this is the kind of thing they like.

What has high finance done to make it popular, if it is popular?

Everybody.

I mean what policies has it pursued?

It has put the savings of our American people into worthless foreign securities.

Well, that's something.

Yeah; and it has put into its own worthless securities the trust funds of widows and orphans.

That's something, too.

Yeah; and it has encouraged speculation, and then rigged the stock market to fleece the lambs and skin the goats.

That's some more of the same kind.

YEAH; AND IT HAS forgiven Europe's debts to us in order to make our people pay the cost of the European war.

Well, that is good for the Europeans.

Yeah; and it has allowed Europe to take more

SMITH JOINS M'ADOO IN FIGHT

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 23.—A series of conferences began in Chicago today among the Democratic captains and lieutenants—conferences that may determine before the week is out whether Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is to be "stopped" and the Democratic presidential nomination thrown elsewhere.

In the thick of them is Alfred Emmanuel Smith, back in his 1928 fighting form, and determined that if the nomination is to go to a New Yorker, he is going to be that New Yorker.

Also in the thick of them is John F. Curry, the greying chief of Tammany Hall, who is actuley embarrassed by having two New York candidates on his hands, and the possibility of unpleasant organization repercussions if he guesses wrong.

SMITH, M'ADOO JOIN

There is also William Gibbs McAdoo, no longer ambitious for himself, but backing Speaker John N. Garner, and united with Smith in a common determination to nominate some one other than Roosevelt. The trail from Madison Square Garden to Chicago's Stadium is a long one, but Smith and McAdoo have travelled it.

Curry won't say who he is for. Smith says he is for Smith.

But there is good reason to believe that Curry devoutly would like to see both Roosevelt and Smith eliminated, and the convention choice fall either to Newton D. Baker or Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland.

There is equally good reason to believe that such a solution of this Democratic dilemma would be not displeasing to Al Smith himself, although he stoutly maintains that he is "for myself, alone."

He was asked:

"Are there any of those states

WAGNER RELIEF BILL INCREASED

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(INS.)—The Senate today added $300,000,000 to the Wagner relief bill for loans to states for unemployment relief activities.

This amendment increased the total of the measure to $2,300,000,000, including $1,500,000,000 additional loaning power for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and a $500,000,000 bond issue for federal public works.

The action was taken because a separate bill to this effect passed recently by the Senate has been held up in the House.

Under the amendment, the R. F. C. could make the loans to states on assurance of the governor that the funds are needed for relief purposes. Repayment would be guaranteed by a levy on future federal road aid appropriations.

The Problem

THE Family Welfare Association has been forced to cut its direct relief to less than $1 per week per person.

The Remedy

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

Riis Opens War on 'Reds' As South Park Caddies

The rebellious seeds of Communism shall never flourish among the 350 golf caddies in South Park as long as Director Paul B. Riis holds sway.

Riis made that clear today in a letter to the County Commissioners. And he told of a Communist being refused a caddy's job there. He gave also a frank description of the caddies.

After hearing from Riis, the Commissioners voted to remove Mike Moran, former bantamweight prizefighter, from the caddymaster's job and place him elsewhere. The caddies had complained of treatment from Moran.

Riis' letter follows:

"It is true Moran has a ready tongue and temperamental disposition. He lacks poise and does not know how to use his authority graciously. On the other hand, he has been provoked into verbal clashes by the 350 caddies, composed of a generally very tough element, many of them former strikebreakers.

"Last year some of them packed guns and a number of them today are carrying knives, conditioned for other than ordinary use. One of the caddy applicants was refused a badge because of his pronounced Communistic traits. Last Saturday this man killed his wife with an ax. This information is given as a closer insight into the sociological standing of the caddies employed at South Park."

HOOVER ARMS CUT PLAN HELD IMPOSSIBLE BY JAPAN

JOINS FRANCE IN STAND FOR SECURITY

Military Services Declared Only Safety Guarantee; Pre-election Gesture Seen

TOKIO, June 23.—(AP.)—Conversations with high officials of the foreign office, the army and the navy produced the impression today that Japan is likely to follow the lead of France in dealing with President Hoover's new armaments proposals.

A high civilian official expressed sentiments which were echoed by the fighting services when he said:

"Our first requirement, like that of the French, is security. As things stand today the great masses of China and Russia adjoin our frontiers, and armaments are our only guarantee of security."

DOMINATE GOVERNMENT

Since the army and navy dominate the present government their attitude is almost certain to determine Japan's decision. The naval men assert that the majority of the naval slashes proposed by Mr. Hoover are impossible. The army leaders, with one-fourth of their strength already engaged in Manchuria, and with the grave possibilities they profess to see on the Russian and Chinese horizons, oppose anything which seems to them likely to dull the half-drawn Japanese sword.

A foreign office spokesman deprecated a tendency by the military leaders to describe the Hoover proposals as a pre-election gesture.

France Sees Hoover's Plan Increasing Arms

PARIS, June 23.—(INS.)—"President Hoover's disarmament bombshell, intended to shatter bayonets, will make them sprout up thicker than ever."

This comment by a high official of the French Foreign Office today summed up the general French reaction to the American chief executive's proposal to reduce the war machinery of the world by one-third.

In comparison with press comment on the proposal, the government spokesman's expressed attitude was mild in the extreme. The Hoover suggestion met with little sympathy and an avalanche of criticism, some of the commentators going so far as to accuse the American President of "politics."

Talk of U. S. Proposal Shunned at Geneva

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 23.—(AP.)—Avoiding discussion of the Hoover armament proposals for the present, American, French and British delegates to the disarmament conference today considered the French suggestion for reducing arms by cutting budgets.

The Americans appeared not altogether pleased that their program, proposed yesterday, was not discussed during today's private talk.

U. S. to Shun Security Pact Demanded by France

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP.)—Insistence by the French government upon a security pact, reported in press dispatches from Geneva concerning President Hoover's arms slash plan, brought the assertion today in high governmental quarters that the United States under no conditions would consider entering such an agreement.

President Hoover and his diplomatic advisers watched closely the reaction to the proposal for reducing the world's arms by one-third, at an estimated saving of around $15,000,000,000 in the next decade, and a general tone of optimism prevailed.

Secretary Stimson said he believed the French government was "warming up to" the Hoover proposal. Little anxiety was expressed in the capital over the attitude of Great Britain, Germany and Italy. The reaction of France and Japan was watched closely.

As word of French reiteration of the need of a security pact reached the capital in newspaper reports, one high official let it be known that the American government had no intention of altering its policy of avoiding such pacts and agreements.

Two Hurt as Auto Crashes Into Pole

Charles Evans, 42, of 3734 Hiawatha street, and Edward Ferguson, 37, of 1125 Allegheny avenue, suffered cuts and bruises when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a pole in Marshall avenue, near Brighton road, last night. Both were taken to St. John's Hospital.

Ferguson, driver of the car, was able to go home after receiving treatment. He told police he swerved his car to avoid hitting another, approaching from the opposite direction.

GETTING AT THE ROOT -:- By Quin Hall

CLAIM 24 PA. SMITH VOTES

By MARK SHIELDS
Political Editor.

CHICAGO, June 23.—National Committeeman Sedgwick Kistler and former State Chairman Collins came into Chicago today with a prediction that at least 24 Pennsylvania delegates to the Democratic national convention would vote for Al Smith on the first ballot.

This was an indirect challenge to the statement of State Chairman Warren Van Dyke and Joseph Guffey, of Pittsburgh, that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, will have 66 of the state's 76 delegates on the first ballot.

His tabulation includes two from Pittsburgh, but it does not include five of the six pro-Roosevelt delegates in Allegheny County elected in congressional districts where Smith received more votes than Roosevelt. It does number Malcolmn McDonald, a pro-Smith delegate and elected as such. It is understood that the Smith people expect William McNair to vote for Smith at least on the first ballot because of the preference vote in his district for the 1928 candidate.

County Chairman David Lawrence arrived today, and he and Van Dyke conferred with James Farley, Roosevelt manager. Lawrence said the six delegates from Allegheny County in Smith districts would decide at a caucus Sunday night how they would vote on the first ballot.

GERMANY ASKS FRENCH PACT

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 23.—(AP.)—Chancellor Franz von Papen, of Germany, today proposed privately a military alliance between France and Germany as a means of meeting France's demand for security before disarmament.

Such an alliance, which would represent the lion and the lamb lying down together in the field of European military affairs, would, he said, be the best way of solving the problems which face the disarmament conference as a result of the French fear of invasion and their security plea.

The greying chancellor added that he was unable to understand the French security pleas, but that he intended to do everything in his power to foster collaboration between the two countries.

than one thousand million dollars of gold out of the United States, but by a moratorium has prevented the United States from getting gold from Europe.

That's good for Europe, too.

Yeah; and it has now put a plank into the Republican platform to allow European nations, through their League Court and League of Nations, to run our American affairs and help themselves out of our treasury.

Well, God helps those who help themselves.

Yeah; and God help America if that policy is ever indorsed.

Well, high finance seems to be powerful even if it isn't popular.

It is.

Maybe then the Democrats think that favoring high finance is the way to get their candidate elected.

Well, that policy didn't get Cox elected.
And it didn't get Davis elected.
And it didn't get Smith elected.

It gets its candidates nominated but not elected.

Then the high financiers are not as smart as I thought they were.

No, they are smarter.

How so?

Well, what do the Democrats get out of all this?

Oratory.

Then what are the people going to do about it?

Grin and bear it.

Well, who runs this country anyhow?

High finance.

Who controls high finance?

Well, where is the land of the free and the home of the brave we hear so much about?

4 Lake Ships Burn At Dock Near Detroit

DETROIT, June 23.—(AP.)—Four Great Lakes steamers, two of them passenger vessels, were destroyed by fire today in a slip in which they were moored in Ecorse.

The ships were the Dover, formerly the Frank E. Kirby, a popular excursion steamer, the Keystone, once named the City of Cleveland and later the City of St. Ignace; the Enterprise, a freighter, and a smaller packet carrier.

Auto Plunge Kills Leechburg Woman

LEECHBURG, Pa., June 23.—Mrs. Anna Lookabaugh, 25, was killed last night when an automobile driven by her husband, Alvin, skidded and plunged over a 60-foot embankment near here. She was thrown from the car. Her husband and two others in the machine, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cober, the latter a bride, escaped with slight injuries.

WOMEN MARKET VICTIMS HEARD BY SENATORS

Exchange Condones Fraud By Prominent Brokers, Says Witness, Assailing Whitney

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP.)—In the role of "victims" of stock market operations, two women today hurled savage criticism at the New York Exchange and private dealers in testimony before the Senate Banking Committee.

Testifying in the committee's stock market investigation, Miss Grace Van Braam Roberts, of Highland, N. Y., said the New York Exchange "condones a fraud when committed by prominent brokers."

PAID ABOVE MARKET

Earlier, Miss Ann Gushee, a Cheyenne, Wyo., bank employe, said she had been sold Continental Shares at 83, although it had never brought more than 78 on the exchange and now is selling for little or nothing.

Miss Roberts said she wanted to protest "the utter dishonesty of the New York Stock Exchange as dominated by Mr. Richard Whitney" and urge enactment of corrective legislation.

She said she complained to the head of the Exchange with reference to Hayden-Stone & Co. and failed to receive satisfactory action although she contended the facts justified barring the brokerage firm from the Exchange.

Her complaint, she said, was that Hayden-Stone & Co. sold her Atlantic Gulf and West Indies stock in 1920 with assurance that it was a good investment and that the investment resulted in a heavy loss.

In a court action, she said, she recovered $16,000, but in spite of this the exchange took no action.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, asked the committee to investigate "this so-called Better Business Bureau of the New York Stock Exchange."

He said he referred to the Better Business Bureau of New York City which he contended is "tied up with" the stock exchange.

Schwab Deal Linked In 'Rigging Market'

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP.)—Morgan Belmont testified today that negotiations in 1927 by Charles M. Schwab to dispose of his interests in the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company for $16,000,000, or $3,000,000 more than the marekt value, were accompanied by plans of brokers presumably formulated to raise the value of the stock by "rigging the market."

Belmont, who is a partner in August Belmont & Co., was a witness in the action brought by Victor Soswice and Michael Kay against the Belmont firm and Speyer & Co. for $140,000 commissions for bringing Schwab to them.

Undeer questioning by Frederick E. Klein, attorney for the plaintiffs, Belmont testified that his firm received $26,000 in commissions without putting up a cent to purchase the Schwab stock.

HOLD UP GIRLS, STUDENTS

Two college students and two girls were forced from their auto by two masked gunmen and robbed in Forest Hills about last midnight, the police reported.

Their car was parked in Burlington road when the stickup men, revolvers drawn, hopped on the running board and ordered them out. The girls stood by, frightened but unmolested.

Clung to Wrecked Plane 8 Days as 15 Ships Pass

MIAMI, Fla., June 23.—(INS.)—Stanislaus Felix Hausner, New Jersey motion picture operator whose attempted flight from New York to Warsaw, Poland, ended atop the angry waves of the Atlantic Ocean several hundred miles off the coast of Portugal, was back on home shores today.

Undaunted by his communion with death during the eight days he drifted without food on water on his fog-bound, disabled plane before being rescued by the freighter Circe Shell, the young Polish-American flier today planned to brave the perilous trans-Atlantic crossing for a second time. He said:

"I'd like to try it tomorrow. I know I'll make it. Bellanca is building me a new ship."

GREETED BY WIFE

Hausner was transferred from the Circe Shell to a tugboat 22 miles off Miami last night and brought here to be greeted by a spontaneous welcome. Thousands lined the docks and cheered as he was greeted by his wife, Father Paul Knappek, his spiritual adviser, and city officials. At a ceremony in a theater he was given the Golden Cross of Merit by Polish embassy officers.

Details of his terrible experiences were revealed by the flier for the first time.

Fifteen ships were sighted by the flier as he drifted on the wing of his crippled plane during the eight days he battled the stormy Atlantic before rescue came. He said:

"I came down about 9 a. m. June 4. My position then was approximately 2,800 miles from New York and I had flown 29 hours.

"I don't know the cause of the trouble. The engine just stopped, but I landed on the water without accident. The sea was running high and the weather was foggy.

FOOD SOON GONE

"I sighted no ship the first day. My small supply of food and water soon became exhausted. The weather was cold and the sea continued high with rain and fog most of the time.

"In the eight days I drifted two or three hundred miles, I saw 15 ships but apparently none of them sighted me.

"It was getting dark on the eighth day when I sighted the Circle Shell. I had given up hope and was exhausted from the terrible experience.

"Then I saw the ship veer from its course and head toward me. Soon they were lowering a boat and in a short time it was alongside.

"I collapsed when I reached the ship and they put me to bed. And, now, here I am."

9 Convicts Rescued In Disabled Boat

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, June 23.—(AP.)—Menaced by sharks as they drifted for five days in a waterlogged open boat on the North Atlantic, nine survivors of a dash for liberty from the French penal colony of Devil's Island, were rescued and brought here today by the British coastal steamer Tarpon.

The men, after escaping from their island prison off French Guiana, southeast of here, attempted to reach sanctuary in Venezuela on the northwest. Storms at sea stripped the sail from their frail craft and filled it with water.

BELL 'FRAMEUP' REPUDIATED BY WITNESS

Buffalo Prisoner Testifies In Bledsoe Trial He Made 'Deal' to Gain Freedom

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 23.—Another contradiction came today in the closing moments of the Donohoe murder trial. Edward Caster, son of Mrs. Helen Hess, repudiated his statement made in the Buffalo (N. Y.) Prison in which he claimed Tony Bell's murder confession was a frame up. In his original statement to Attorney James B. McKenna, Caster asserted that Bell decided to "get" R. C. Bledsoe, now on trial with Cosmo Stengoni, because Bledsoe had testified against Bell in his murder trial.

Today the witness said he concocted the "frame-up" story in a bargain in which McKenna was to get his (Caster's) sentence for extortion and impersonating an officer reduced.

In rebuttal, Mike Bond, of 1713 Locust street, Pittsburgh, testified that Bledsoe, while in jail, had confessed participation in the Donohoe murder. He said Bledsoe recited how he had wiped finger prints from the steering wheel and top of the death machine. He claimed Bledsoe had approached him with a proposition by which Bond was to swear that Bell saw Bond in Pittsburgh and wanted him to help frame the plot so that they could collect the reward. He also said Bledsoe had asked him to "fix things up" with Michael Kintz, of Sharpsburg, and Mrs. Elsie Ritenour.

Failing to get the witness to change his story on cross-examination, the defense brought out that he had been arrested thrice on liquor charges and the fourth time was jailed for an auto theft. He admitted Bledsoe had arrested him in 1926. He denied that he and Bledsoe were enemies.

WOMAN TESTIFIES

The fate of Bledsoe and Stengoni was expected late today to go to the jury of eight men and four women. The trial has been one of the longest in Fayette County. Few witnesses left the stand uncontradicted.

HYMIE CLEARED IN BANK HOLDUP

COLUMBUS, O., June 23.—(INS.)—After three witnesses failed to identify him as the bandit in a Gas City (Ind.) bank holdup in 1928, Hyman (Pittsburgh Hymie) Martin, one-time reputed petty racketter, today was given a clean "bill of health" on his police record for the first time in more than a year.

Indiana authorities withdrew their requisition for Martin today after J. Willard Ball, the victimized cashier of the Gas City bank, and two other witnesses failed to recognize him as the bandit who held up the Gas City State Bank on November 2, 1928, and escaped with $10,000.

Martin, who was acquitted of the murder of former Cleveland Councilman William E. Potter in a retrial last week, after he had served several weeks in the Ohio Penitentiary, made a bold stand for his freedom during the extradition hearing conducted in the offices of Gov. George White here.

Illinois Marshal Found Shot to Death

SHANNON, Ill., June 23.—(AP.)—Earl Sturtevant, 42, village marshal, was found shot to death in his automobile today by a truck driver.

The authorities believed that Sturtevant was shot by some prowler he encountered while making his rounds and that he crawled into his car and died.

Electricity Tax Change Rejected

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(INS.)—The House Ways and Means Committee today refused to report out a resolution which would have transferred the electric light and power tax to the producing companies instead of assessing it on the consumer. The vote was 12 to 9.

PRINCE OF WALES, 38, GETS WORLD-WIDE GREETINGS

REMAINS MOST ELIGIBLE OF BACHELORS

Heir to Throne Ends Busy Year Without Granting Nation's Wish for Wedding

LONDON, June 23.—(AP.)—Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, celebrated his thirty-eighth birthday today, still the world's most eligible bachelor, in spite of fervent wishes expressed in Britain a year ago today that there might be a Princess of Wales on his next anniversary.

In contrast with recent birthdays when his schedule of work and engagements has been followed as usual, he decided to take a day off today. The only task he assigned himself was to read the thousands of congratulatory messages that poured in from all corners of the world.

ENDS BUSY YEAR

He left behind him a busy year when he awoke this morning to realize he was 38.

During it he has taken up motor boating, made a hole in one, been badly shaken up in an automobile accident, become a book collector, taken up cycling, led the world in the wearing of berets, and suffered several days illness.

He played Santa Claus at a party attended by his household staff and their families, become a football fan, became gymnastic instructor for his two young nephews, and opened the new Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford-on-Avon, among other things too numerous to mention.

LIKES TRIPE, ONIONS

It was discovered he is fond of tripe and onions, doesn't like strangers to follow him on golf courses, has sympathy for the unemployed, and has hopes of seeing British industrial conditions improve.

He represented Great Britain at the funeral of President Paul Doumer, of France; acted as guide to a group of tourists in London, sent a life guard's uniform to a little boy who had been brave, and had a radio installed in his plane.

He swapped flying yarns with Amelia Earhart after her trans-Atlantic flight, told an audience of farmers at a county fair they were behind the times, and was appointed honorary air commodore by his father, the King, on the latter's birthday, early this month.

Avella Mine Reopens, Troopers Guard Crew

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 23.—Fifty men guarded by state police entered the Paxton mine of the Leech Farm Coal Company at Avella today as that company resumed operations after having been closed by strike since April 16. Eighty-five pickets lined the highway, but made no attempt to molest the miners. Other mines in the district are reported planning to reopen.

gins was killed by other gangsters.

Higgins went to the prison by airplane, was welcomed by a prison guard who spread out a sheet to show the pilot where to land, and the gangster spent the night in the warden's house as his guest. Gov. Roosevelt will want to know a good deal about that interesting reception.

ONE CHEERFUL note in the day's news. More gold has been found in the Alaska Nuka district, seventy miles west of Seward, and an old-fashioned gold stampede has been started. The announcement is:

Discovery of gold in California in '49 killed off a depression. Discovery of Klondike gold helped to kill another depression.

Perhaps this Alaska discovery will give our country the "gold cure" that it needs, after a debauch of war and stock gambling.

THE DIES bill passed by the House, sent to the Senate, makes membership in the Communist party or affiliated labor unions and organizations a deportable offense, and any alien teaching or advocating Communism doctrine can be deported. The National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners protests violently, in the names of the poetess Edna St. Vincent Millay, Theodore Dreiser and Lincoln Steffens and others, on the theory that men should be deported or otherwise punished for what they DO, not for what they THINK OR BELIEVE. Once you were put in prison if you believed and taught that the earth was round.

THE WISE British have little trouble in the way of political crimes, and they allow any one to believe and say what he chooses as long as he does not DO anything.

We have plenty of people over here that are doing things, racketeers of assorted kinds, enough of them to keep the police and the Dies bill busy, for the present.

BOY PROWLER SHOT DEAD

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 23.—An unidentified boy prowler, aged about 14, was shot to death early today by Arnold Gartner as he attempted to pry a window in the adjoining residence of Samuel Davis, Gartner's stepfather, according to a police report.

Gartner told police he fired a shotgun through an open window of the second floor of his home to frighten away the boy, who, he said, was trying to force his stepfather's window with a chisel. He said no warning preceeded the shot.

Davis and his wife were awakened by the shot. The boy was dead when found. In his pockets police said they found several skeleton keys and paraphernalia for picking locks. A search for several other youths who were seen with the boy is being made.

Boy, 14, Sentenced In Holdup Killing

DONIPHAN, Mo., June 23.—(INS.)—Estle Austill, 14-year-old St. Louis boy, today was found guilty of the killing of W. E. Haley, filling station proprietor of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Haley was shot and fatally wounded on the night of January 10, last, when the young bandit attempted to rob him in his filling station at Poplar Bluff.

NURSE SHRIEKS IN HUTTON BALM CASE

Weeping Plaintiff Demands Right to Defend Character As Defense Probes Past

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—(AP.)—Defense attorneys today hoped to present to a jury more details of the "past life" of Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, twice-married, 30-year-old nurse who seeks $200,000 from David Hutton for alleged breach of promise.

To the aid of the choir singer and the husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, they have summoned several men whom the pretty nurse admitted she knew.

PLAINTIFF WEEPS

Steadfastly trying to pick flaws in her story that Hutton betrayed her under promise of marriage, the defense met opposition on each of the "past life" questions from Miss St. Pierre's attorneys and she shrieked, bursting into tears:

Superior Judge Lester Roth restored order.

Miss St. Pierre admitted, under questioning of defense counsel, she was born "Myrtle St. Peters" and that she had used the names of "Jean Deville," "Hazel" and "Joan" as well as the two previous marriage names, Mrs. H. H. Harrington, Jr., and Mrs. George Street. Her testimony was frequently interrupted by heated clashes between attorneys.

"TRIAL" FOR AIMEE

Hutton told friends during the court recess:

"They're not trying David Hutton in this case. They're trying poor Aimee herself, who lies flat on her back in a hospital. And they're crucifying David Hutton's mother as well. Mother has collapsed because of the case."

Hutton's wife is in a sanitarium suffering from a nervous breakdown, complicated by a tropical ailment contracted on her recent visit to Central America. So serious is her illness, she was told the trial had been postponed.

BOY MISSING, DRAG RIVER

MONESSEN, Pa., June 23.—A bundle of clothes found on the banks of the Monongahela River today appeared to solve the mystery attending the disappearance of Jimmy di Rentiss, a Monessen schoolboy.

Police were convinced the boy had been drowned. They were dragging the river for his body today.

Jimmy hadn't been seen since yesterday morning.

FEAR 100 DEAD IN TIDAL WAVE

MEXICO CITY, June 23.—(INS.)—Government troops directing rescue work today estimated more than 100 persons were killed when a giant tidal wave, preceded by two earthquake shocks, rushed over the fashionable resort town of Cuyutlan, in the state of Colima on the west coast.

Forty bodies were recovered from ruins of buildings throughout the town, which was virtually wiped out. More bodies were expected to be found, while it was believed several score, including many children, were carried out to sea as the ocean receded.

Sixty-two survivors, seriously injured, were taken to the state hospital at Colima by government troops, who were rushed into rescue work at the command of President Ortiz Rubio. Cuyutlan was a town of 3,000 inhabitants, which was growing rapidly in popularity as a watering place.

Nazis, Police Fight Rioting Communists

BERLIN, June 23.—(INS.)—Heavy street fighting occurred throughout Germany today between police and Communists, who were reported to have started a country-wide riot campaign.

Police in armored cars battled Communists barricaded in the workers' quarters of North Berlin. Numerous clashes occurred in Halle, Osnabrueck, Breslau and other cities. Nazis were involved in many of the fights with the reds.

French Reds Plead For 8 Doomed Men

PARIS, June 23.—(INS.)—The American Embassy today forwarded to Washington the protest of a delegation of 18 Communists against the scheduled execution of eight Negroes convicted in Scottsboro, Ala., of attacking a white girl.

SPITALE, BITZ MARKED TO DIE

NEW YORK, June 23.—(INS.)—Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, underworld emissaries of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the fruitless search for his kidnaped baby, were slated to be bumped off with Vannie Higgins, Broolyn rumrunner king.

Police today received information that the killing of Higgins was part of a triangular murder plot by New Jersey rumrunners who suspected Higgins, Spitale and Bitz of nighjacking liquor on the coast.

The triple assassination plan outrivaled the St. Valentine Day massacre of a squad of gangsters in Chicago.

The three-on-a-spot program called for killing Higgins, Spitale and Bitz as they came out of a dance recital in which the daughters of Higgins and Spitale were partaking.

Spitale, questioned by police today, said that he believed he and Bitz unwittingly escaped the gunmen because they left earlier than Higgins and took a taxicab.

AVIATRIX HELD AS ALIEN LAW VIOLATOR

Mrs. J. M. Keith Miller in Jail Charged With Illegal Entry Into U.S.; Waits Bond

MIAMI, Fla., June 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix and prominent figure in the recent mysterious shooting of her fiance, Haden Clarke, was arrested by federal immigration authorities and placed in jail last night on a charge of illegal entry into the United States.

Bond of $1,000 was fixed for her release pending trial, but she said she would make no attempt to provide it until her attorney, who is out of the city, returns.

DENIES CHARGE

She denied illegal entry into the country as she talked to newspapermen in the jail. She said:

"If the authorities will check up in Washington, they will find my entry into the United States, four years ago this month, was entirely legal, and that I have every right to be here.

"When I was arrested the officers told me someone—I don't know who — had complained against me."

The Australian aviatrix, victim of misfortunes for the past several years, was lodged in the women's division of the jail, one floor above the tier of cells where Capt. W. N. Lancaster, her former fiance, is awaiting trial on a murder charge in the Clarke case. Lancaster is scheduled to go on trial July 5.

Several years ago, Mrs. Keith Miller and Lancaster made a successful flight from London to Australia after overcoming many misfortunes. Later they came to the United States as flying partners.

Clarke was writing her life story for publication at the time he was mysteriously shot in her home, April 21, in the room he and Lancaster occupied.

Mrs. Keith Miller was exonerated of all knowledge of the affair by State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne.

BARE NEW CLUE IN LINDY HOAX

TRENTON, N. J., June 23.—(INS.)—A new clue supplied by a New York taxicab driver, spurred efforts of New Jersey state police in the hunt for the kidnapers and slayers of the Lindbergh baby.

The driver, a Negro whose name police withheld, apparently furnished the first description of the persons to whom Dr. John F. (Jaffsie) Condon, New York negotiator in the kidnap investigation, tossed $50,000 futile ransom over a New York cemetery wall in the belief the baby would be restored.

Two men and a woman engaged his cab on the night of April 2, when Condon paid the money, the chauffeur related. He drove them to a place near St. Raymond's Cemetery, where one man got out, to return in 15 minutes and ordered the cab driver to the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Ferry to Fort Lee.

Federal Kidnap Bill Signed by Hoover

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP.)—President Hoover yesterday signed a bill making the transportation of kidnaped persons across state lines a federal offense punishable by imprisonment.

The Patterson-Cochran bill provides that whoever knowingly transports a flidnaped person from state to state or to a foreign country shall be punished by imprisonment "for such term of years as the court, in its discretion, shall determine."

Flier Jailed

MRS. J. M. KEITH MILLER

Mrs. Keith Miller, divorced Australian flier, today jailed in Miami on a federal charge of illegal entry into the U. S. She's in a cell on the floor above that of her former fiance, Capt. W. N. Lancaster, awaiting trial for murder in the death of her fiance, Haden Clark, writer.

ACUNA, STOOL PIGEON, DIES

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP.)—Chile Acuna, the stool pigeon who was guarded almost as carefully as a President, is dead.

His passing was not unexpected, but the manner of it was a surprise. Instead of the violent demise that 15 "blue ribbon" policemen were assigned to prevent, he expired peacefully last night in Brooklyn Eye and Ear Hospital. He had been in a coma after an operation for a brain tumor.

Acuna burst into notoriety in 1930 by telling how detectives hired him to "get the goods" on defenseless and sometimes innocent women. The scandal he broke abolished the old vice squad and sent some of its members to Sing Sing prison.

Young Menjou Freed Under $6,000 Bond

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—(AP.)—Harold L. Menjou, 20, was released from the county jail on $6,000 bond yesterday after a coroner's jury returned a verdict blaming him for the death of his 16-year-old companion, Marjorie Gauthier. Beverly Hills high school girl, in an automobile accident last Saturday night.

A preliminary hearing on charges of murder and drunken driving was set for June 30. Menjou was adopted in 1923 by Adolph Menjou, film actor, before his divorce from the boy's mother. The actor said he has been out of touch with the boy several years.

Actress' Daughter Begins Stage Career

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—(AP.)—Frances Creel, 18, daughter of Blanche Bates, noted actress, and George Creel, publicist, has started a stage career.

She has been given a maid's part in "Berkeley Square" at the San Francisco Theater, in which her mother, probably best known for creating the lead role in "The Girl of the Golden West," made her theatrical bow.

250,000 TO JOIN IN EUCHARIST SERVICE

Men at Dublin Congress to Hold Impressive Ceremony; Papal Legate Opens Meet

DUBLIN, June 23.—(AP.)—Massed in military formation before the high altar in Phoenix Park, a quarter of a million men will lift their voices under the stars tonight in one of the most inspiring moments of the Eucharistic Congress.

It will be strictly an affair for men only. The singing will be led by a special choir of men and carried to the vast congregation through a microphone system.

Cardinal Lauri, the papal legate, will preside at the meeting, and at its conclusion pass among the battalions.

A solemn pontifical high mass at 12:30 a. m. and another at 11 this morning were the religious high spots of today's program.

But the thousands of visitors spent a busy day with meetings for each nationality and general meetings at which the theme was the doctrine of the Eucharist—the bodily presence of Christ in the Blessed Sacrament—which is the central foundation of the Eucharistic Congress.

Tomorrow's arrangements include a pontifical high mass, more sectional meetings and a great mass meeting for women in the evening.

BLESSING FROM POPE

With a special message to Ireland and a blessing from Pope Pius XI, Cardinal Lauri formally opened the congress yesterday before a distinguished congregation composed of the hierarchy of Ireland, prelates from other countries and officials of the Irish Free State.

The cathedral was a brilliant shading of color from the scarlet-clad cardinals ranked on thrones near the altar through blocks of purple-robed bishops to ordinary surpliced priests who filled the rest of the nave.

Outside, multitudes stretched away for half a mile in packed streets while they followed the proceedings by the aid of loud speakers.

FATHER COX THERE

Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, told reporters today he intended to organize and lead a "jobless party" in the United States after touring Europe this summer.

George O'Day, of Culver City, Cal., arrived with a letter to President De Valera from Gov. Rolfe, of California, which he carried across the American continent on a motorcycle.

Father J. F. Hickey, of Cincinnati, brought to the Congress a crucifix blessed by three Popes. He intends to go to Rome when the Congress is over.

HALTS CHURCH CANDLE SALES

ROME, June 23.—(AP.)—The sale of candles in churches of the diocese of Rome, for the burning before altars, is forbidden by a decree issued today by the Pope's vicar general, Cardinal Marchetti Selvaggiani.

The decree, which abolishes a long-established practice in the church, is part of a series of reforms to be put into effect by the vicar general. Since the diocese of Rome is the mother diocese of the church, it was expected the reforms would be applied elsewhere also. Said the cardinal:

"One mass well heard, one communion well received, will obtain more heaveniy graces than thousands of candles lighted every day."

The use of candles before the altars is not changed by the decree, but they must be bought elsewhere.

Other decrees by the cardinal forbade the use of artificial flowers and the photographing of sacred functions in the churches.

PINCHOT RELIEF CALL LEAVES COURSE OPEN

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, June 23.—Issuance of the formal call convening the General Assembly in extraordinary session gave legislators the opportunity today of selecting the course each will pursue when the 14-point program confronts them Monday night for official disposition.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot dispatched the call yesterday afternoon. It did not deviate from the agreement reached in a series of conferences and no attempt was made to dictate the precise nature of each of the measures to be considered.

ECONOMY UNMENTIONED

The Governor's call did not mention "economy" as one of the means of obtaining additional revenue for state expenses, but is so worded that the Legislature will find the door open to enactments designed to eliminate any government activities considered unnecessary.

The path for such action was opened by the Governor's inclusion of a section which will permit reduction of appropriations made at the last regular session. Gov. Pinchot was promised a reduction of $5,300,000 in state government expense during the coming year and it is from such reductions that it is hoped to find enough money to restore, wholly or in part, the $9,720,364 abated from the former appropriations because of passage of the Talbot act.

POLITICAL DIVISIONS

Under the Governor's plan the state's political subdivisions will be expected to assume the major responsibility for any future payments they make for aiding the idle. Such subdivisions will be empowered to make emergency loans during the present year for unemployment relief.

The state will assume responsibility for such loans, either wholly or in part, only on condition that new tax measures are passed or a constitutional amendment passed to authorize a loan for that purpose.

As all factions of the legislature have agreed that no new taxes can be imposed at present, the hope of state grants will depend upon a state loan, which also is opposed by powerful groups in both houses.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 23.—(AP.)—Harvard University today conferred 11 honorary degrees at its two hundred ninety-sixth commencement, the recipients including Richard B. Ingram Shops, Home Damaged by Flames

Spontaneous combustion was blamed last night for a $3,000 fire which damaged a two-story frame building at 8 Ingram avenue, Ingram. Starting in the rear of the Fair Play Cleaning Company, the flames spread to the second floor, damaging the Ingram Beauty Parlor and the apartment of F. Wycisk.

Chileans Observe New Curfew Law

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 23. —(AP.)—Chile's new curfew law was being strictly obeyed throughout the country today, as far as could be learned here.

Santiago was quiet last night. The streets were deserted after 10 o'clock and street cars and buses stopped running.

P. S. C. TO OPEN RATE PROBE TOMORROW

Secret Sessions Scheduled On Charges of West Penn And Duquesne Companies

Public Service Commissioners Samuel Walker and George W. Woodruff tomorrow will begin their probe at Harrisburg into the rate structures of electric companies in an effort to lower charges to domestic consumers.

The commission has fixed 9 a. m. as the time to hear officials, chief accountants and legal talent of the West Penn Electric Company, to be followed at 10:30 by representatives of the Duquesne Light Company.

The gatherings have been styled "conferences" and as on former occasions, in meetings of the kind, they will be held behind closed doors.

The Commission has had accountants examining the financial statements of the companies and will make deductions from them, in efforts likely to be made to bring about reductions in rates. It is stated that the book value of the companies has been compiled by the Commission's Bureau and allowances made for depreciation and working capital.

The West Penn Company has lowered rates in its northern territory, it was stated at Harrisburg, but not elsewhere.

The Duquesne Light Company has offered a 10-cent per month cut to domestic consumers. The offer made to city Council sometime ago was not accepted.

BENEDUM SEES G.O.P. DEFEAT

CHICAGO, June 23.—M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh oil man, who supported Hoover in 1928, arrived in Chicago this morning to interest himself in the nomination of a Democratic candidate for President and the writing of a platform. He was asked:

"What caused you to quit Hoover?

he replied:

"Has Mr. Hoover done one thing to retain the support of those who were with him four years ago?

"The Democrats are going to win this year, and I want to see the party have a candidate who can muster the strength of all the people. The platform should be short and clear and should make some frank declarations on policy and a course which will serve to aid the return of prosperity."

Benedum declined to say whether he was interested in the candidacy of any individual, but was escorted about the headquarters floor by Guffey. He conferred with James A. Farley, Roosevelt leader, but then visited the headquarters of other candidates.

Aide to Fire Chief Charged With Arson

John A. Hancock, assistant fire chief of the East Carnegie volunteer department, accused by Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr of starting fires instead of extinguishing them, stood charged with arson today.

Pfarr, in information before Alderman Thomas M. Geary, alleged that Hancock fired the First Spiritual Church, East Carnegie, early yesterday causing $50 damage. The church has been fired three times in six months.

REPAIR OF PARK BRIDGE VOTED

Repairs to the bridge over the Pittsburgh Junction Railroad in Schenley Park, costing $63,000, were authorized yesterday by Council.

Council instructed the Public Works Department to inform the County Commissioners that the city was willing to let the county take over supervision of the Smithfield street, Manchester and South Twenty-second street bridges at any time. The Smithfield street span would be repaired by the city before the transfer.

Estimated cost of repairs to the downtown span is $225,000, with aluminum alloys being used. The repairs would put the bridge in good condition for 25 years, it was said.

Homestead Boy Hurt In Fall from Train

Falling from a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad freight train, between Ann and McClure streets, Homestead, Frank Redishaski, 12, of 534 Stone way, Homestead, was in Homestead Hospital today suffering from head injuries.

MAN AND SISTER BOUND, ROBBED

KITTANNING, Pa., June 23.—State police today are grilling Edward McIntyre, 25, of Kaylor, and Doris Yough, 26, of East Brady, and searching for another suspect in connection with the holdup robbery of Adam Johns, 68, and his sister, Mary Johns, 63, in their home at Cowansville Sunday night. The robbers obtained $1,800 after binding the man.

Police said the robbers visited the Johns home early Sunday evening and bound Johns to a chair. They ransacked the house, keeping Miss Johns with them in their search. Once Johns broke loose from his bonds and attacked the robbers, but was overpowered and bound again.

The two prisoners, arrested in East Brady last night by Sergt. Millaney, were to be taken before the victims for possible identification this afternoon.

Tablelands Trade Emphasized by Dunn

One hundred and fifty thousand potential customers await Pittsburgh merchants in a territory not more than two or three hours by automobile from the city, President Thomas A. Dunn, of the Chamber of Commerce, told members of the Typothetate of Pittsburgh in an address on the Allegheny Tablelands in McCreery's yesterday. He said:

"We must continue to sell Pittsburgh to the tablelands, and get the great purchasing power that will follow. Of course, these people expect reciprocity. They have many things to sell us which we use daily. And I am certain reciprocal business relations will be of inestimable benefit not only to Pittsburghers but residents of the tablelands as well."

KLINE PRAISED ON RELIEF

Mayor Charles H. Kline and his cabinet today were commended by Arthur E. Braun, a member of the operating committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, for approving the sale of $800,000 relief bonds, part of the $5,000,000 issue sponsored by the association in the April primary election.

Mr. Braun said:

"Confronted as the city authorities are with the problem of making increased expenditures due to the unemployment situation, and at the same time exerting every effort to economize in the cost of the city's administration so as to lessen the load on the taxpayer, the action agreed upon by the city officials at the conference yesterday is to be commended, and we feel sure will meet with popular support and approval."

National Open Golf Tourney On Air; Sophie Tucker With Rudy on WCAE

America's greatest golfing event, the National Open Championship, is on the air for the remainder of the week in programs arranged by the National Broadcasting Company. Alex J. Morrison, one of the country's leading authorities on golf, acts as chief announcer, assisted by Ed Thorgerson, of the NBC staff, during the broadcasts from the Fresh Meadow Country Club at Flushing, L. I.

Mr. Morrison

The opening broadcast, on an NBC network including KDKA today at 1 p. m., is followed by another on WCAE at 5:45. Tomorrow, Morrison will give the highlights of the day's play over WCAE at 5:45, and on Saturday, the final day, he will be on the air over both WCAE and KDKA at various times, reporting last minute scores and naming the winner at the end of the battle.

The second of a series of pre-Democratic convention talks announced yesterday is broadcast over WCAE tonight at 11:15. William Hard, ace NBC political analyst, discusses probable questions and debates of the convention.

Music for the dancers, scheduled on WCAE tonight, is featured by Jack Payne's orchestra, playing from London, and Joe Moss and his orchestra, from New York during the cigaret dance hour at 10 o'clock, with Walter Winchell, purveyor of breezy Broadway gossip, and Walter O'Keefe, master of ceremonies. At 11, the strains of Russ Columbo's orchestra are heard, with the rhythm of Paul Whiteman's orchestra taking the air from 11:30 to midnight.

Program Pointers

Sophie Tucker takes time off from a busy vaudeville schedule to return to the microphone as guest artist with Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees over WCAE tonight at 8. The last of the Red Hot Mammas, who on radio has adhered to her robust style of singing and speaking, offers several of her specialty numbers and engages in dialogue with Rudy during the broadcast . . . Irene Beasley, popular contralto, currently featured in a series on a Columbia network, sings the love song "Bill," from "Show Boat," "Goodbye Blues" and "Nobody's Sweetheart Now" during her program with Fred Berrens' Orchestra on WJAS at 11.

Sophie Tucker

Another minutely synchronized program on WJAS at 9:15 presents the Mills Brothers, singing from Chicago, and Vic Young's Orchestra, from New York.

Whispering Jack Smith, who has been heard over KDKA twice a week, goes on a three-a-week schedule beginning with tonight's program at 10:15.

With tonight's presentation on KDKA at 9, the Danger Fighters weekly programs switch from Saturday to Thursday. "The Hunter," a true story of Edward Jenner, British physician, discoverer of a vaccine for smallpox, is the first dramatization under the new schedule.

Margaret Russell, contralto, and Samuel Di Primio, tenor, young Western Pennsylvania artists, are scheduled in two broadcasts from KDKA tonight. Miss Russell is heard at 11:20 and Mr. Di Primio at 8.

Ossip Giskin, 'cellist, is featured as soloist with Howard Barlow during the Columbia Symphony Orchestra concert on WJAS at 10:30.

Paul Coyle, announcer at Forbes Field, chats about the members of the Pirates and discusses college athletics and local sports events on WWSW at 6.45.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

By Request

He says of her: "She was so fair,
Like Sunlight on an April leaf;
Braided and bound her lovely hair,
Her eyes all shadoy with grief."

He says of her: "And thus she went Without the grace of backward glance—"
And all his hours, he says, are spent
Regretting what was once romance.

My lord, if she who smiles at you
Is quick to listen, soon or late,
To tales of me—I beg you to Enliven them with scorn or hate.

It is so dull—"she was so fair"—
So old a story that men tell.
It would be more than I could bear
To know you'd do it extra well!

—Elspeth.

Gag

The Sharkey-Schmeling brawl brings back this timely tale of the ring. It's the story of The Sure-Thing Manager and The Leaden Bandages. This crafty fight manager managed to send his palooka into battle with his right glove weighted with 200 yards of leaded wire-tape, cement-soaked gauze and part of a horseshoe.

"Swing it yourself," was the hysterical answer, "I cant' even lift it!"

Merciless Truth

Newspapermen turn out some of the best fiction of the day, observes a literary critic, and Norman Sullivan agrees—especially when you try to collect coin they owe you!

Complaint

"Dear Walter, wires Dan Winkler, an authority on Broadway, "let's be fair. You state that Whispering Jack Smith was the first crooner. Without question of a doubt Benny Fields (Blossom Seeley's man) was crooning songs 15 years ago. I can prove it to your satisfaction if a first-crooner controversy ever arises, and Fields will win."

On the radio?

In Fewer Words

Joan of Aaaaah!

"I dread openings where one is stared at. I dread going out nights for fear some autograph seeker will rush up to me and make me a center of attention. I escape all that when I can. I'd much rather be away in a mountain cabin where I can think."—Joan Crawford.

Gratitude

On Broadway more than any other place, one presumes, it isn't so hard to make new friends—as it is to keep your old ones. But one of the lads put over a neat trick on those who had served him faithfully and there is a lot of groaning going on, as a result.

He lost his wife, who convinced the courts that he was a wrong guy—and when she wound up with the verdict she also rated his savings, his property and his jewels.

Then he lost his job—and the landlord almost dispossessed him. This is when his real friends came to the front for him. They lent him a young fortune to get back on his feet. The coin set him up in business again, and now he no longer dreads the fear of disgrace and poverty.

So the other day, to show those who were so loyal to him, how grateful he was—he went into bankruptcy—to avoid making good his debts.

There ought to be a law.

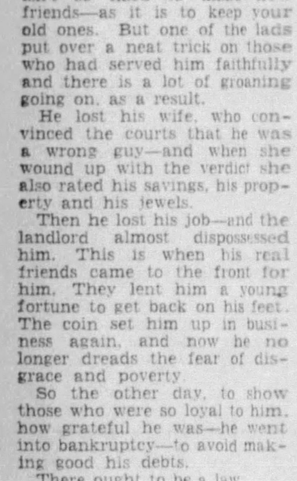
Gosh, Yes!

Hs is a poor columnist, indeed, who doesn't believe that his contemporaries waste more time and space than he. But Fred Donaghey, who used to column for a Chicago living, says that he used to do a column "in half an hour" and that he could have done it in less "if it weren't for those contributors!"

Nonsense

Then there's the silly about

Wild



Australian bushmen are the menace in "The Blonde Captive," opening in the Davis, Friday.

Pleads

the new teacher whose class was made up of 6-year-olds.

"I like geography," she began, "I know where Germany is; there's salt water in the sea and science is a great subject. How old am I?"

Little Abe Mefoofsky, 6, got up.

"You're 44," cried Mefoofsky."

"Amazing!" said teacher, "how on earth did you guess?"

"Well," Abie replied, "I got a brother who's half crazy—and he's 22!"

Scallion

Mr. Elinson, a bit of a critic, says he saw a flop show last night and wanted to leave after the initial intermission, but didn't have the heart.

"I felt," he says, "that the cast expected me back."

Grounds for Divorce

They say that Fanny Ward, who bills herself as "Father Time's Sweetheart," is a fortune teller fiend. And that while she was on tour recently she had a chairvoyant read her future. The crystal-gazer said among other things:

"Within two years you will fall madly in love."

Fanny raced to a long distance phone to call her husband in New York.

"Darling," she ejaculated, "a fortune teller just told me that within two years I will fall madly in love!"

"In two years," snapped her husband, "you will fall madly apart!"

Big Corner in First Folios Collected by Folger Worth $4,000,000

By GEORGE SEIBEL

When I visited the new Folger Library in Washington a week or 10 days ago, I met several Pittsburghers there. Though this Temple of Shakespeare was dedicated only two months ago, it is being visited by hundreds every day. And it's worth a trip to Washington merely to see this finest library in the world.

The white marble building is just behind the Congressional Library—as you walk up to it you see a beautiful statue of Puck, above the basin of a fountain, with his phrase from "Mid-Summer Night's Dream," that ever appropriate "What fools these mortals be!" especially appropriate so close to the halls of Congress.

Mr. Seibel

The building is surrounded by green boxwood hedges — in the walls are sculptured reliefs of scenes from Shakespeare — at the farthest end is a model Elizabethan playhouse, with a stage like that of the Globe or Swan theaters in Shakespeare's time, and galleries like those that ran around the interior courtyard of Elizabethan inns.

Plays used to be given in these innyards, and the spectators stood in the galleries above. That custom has influenced theatrical architecture to this day. The inside of the Metropolitan Opera House is modeled after the plan of old English inns, some of which are still standing.

ONLY 79 FIRST FOLIOS

The building is beautiful and costly, but after all it's the contents that make its value. Any library in the world that possesses a copy of the "First Folio," printed in 1623, holds that as its greatest treasure.

The Folger Library has 79 copies of the First Folio.

When Sydney Lee made his census of First Folios in 1902, there were only 160 known. If Folger had got hold of one more, he would have had half the total.

Four years later Lee had found only 14 additional copies. At the latest sale I have noted a copy was sold for £8,600, about $43,000. If we estimate the Folger collection roughly at $50,000 apiece, here we have nearly four million dollars' worth of First Folios in the library devoted to Shakespeare and nothing but Shakespeare.

The original selling price of the Folio was one pound. That was reasonable for a book of 908 pages, about 14 inches high and about 9 inches broad. Prynne, a Puritan writer who hated the stage, complained that the paper was better than that used in most Bibles. With all its hundreds of misprints, it is a noble specimen of the printer's art.

FROM POETS' LIBRARIES

In a special case at the Folger Library are volumes of Shakespeare which were the personal possession of Shelley and Robert Burns, of Coleridge and Charles Lamb, of Samuel Johnson and James Boswell, of Thomas Gray whose "Elegy" is the sweetest of English poems, and of Walt Whitman whose "Leaves of Grass" are the most rugged.

There are the volumes of Shakespeare which belonged to novelists like Thackeray and Trollope, Hawthorne and Robert Louis Stevenson.

There are the volumes that belonged to our American poets—Emerson, Lowell and Holmes.

There is the volume that belonged to the luscious Swinburne and that which belonged to the hard-headed logician John Stuart Mill.

There is the volume which belonged to George the Third. And only a foot away that which belonged to George Washington. And there is the volume which belonged to Abraham Lincoln, showing that the greatest American read the works of the greatest Englishman.

SOUVENIRS OF ACTORS

Aside from the literary treasures in the library are many that belong to the stage. There are promptbooks of famous actors—Edmund Kean, Charles Kean, Samuel Phelps, William Macready, Helen Faucit, Henry Irving. There is the dagger used by Henry Irving when he played Hamlet; the dagger used by Beerbohm Tree when he played Macbeth; the dagger used by Ada Rehan when she played Viola in "Twelfth Night." There is Macbeth's mace wielded by Edwin Booth, his crown worn by E. H. Sothern, and Juliet's fan carried by Julia Marlowe.

There is Edwin Booth's beautiful signet ring engraved with a head of Shakespeare, and the loving cup presented to David Garrick at the time of the first Shakespeare jubilee, made of wood taken from Shakespeare's own mulberry tree.

There is a clock from the Falcon Tavern, which was almost exactly opposite New Place, Shakespeare's last home. It is reported that Shakespeare used to play shuffleboard at the Falcon—I had tea there, but could not verify the rumor.

There is a little statuette of Shakespeare carved out of the wood of Shakespeare's crabtree, but I think there is more of the crabtree than of Shakespeare in it. The "eyes in a fine frenzy rolling" were gouged by a most inartistic chisel or cheese-knife. If Shakespeare looked like that, it might be Bacon.

Penn to Show Title Bout

As a special attraction for the week starting Friday Loew's Penn Theater has been successful in securing the exclusive motion pictures of the Sharkey-Schmeling world's championship fight.

The preliminary training as well as the bout itself has been taken and during the fight a great many feet of slow motion film was exposed so that everyone will actually have a ringside seat. It is the contention of the Schmeling camp that the pictures will prove Schmeling was robbed of his title. Sharkey and his managers are claiming that the picture will prove he earned the title on his merit.

Amateur Film Planned

Warner Brothers are going to make an all-talking "Our Kiddie" comedy and the cast will be selected in the Stanley Theater at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 10. Only children under 16 years of age are eligible for the all-talking picture.

At all Warner Brothers theaters in Pittsburgh application cards will be given to those wanting to try out for the first all-talking picture ever filmed in Pittsburgh. Application cards must be filled out in advance.

F. Herrick Herrick, Hollywood director, will be in charge of the production. All scenes will be taken in Pittsburgh and the entire cast will be made up of Pittsburgh children. Those cast for the "grownup" roles will also be chosen in Pittsburgh.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

THE GIRL and I were sitting on the terrace of the hospitable Berkeley-Carteret Hotel, in Asbury Park, New Jersey. I hadn't seen her in some three years, and we were mutually happy when we met in the lobby earlier in the evening. Now it was almost midnight, and we sat gazing contentedly at the waves as they broke upon the sandy shore.

We talked—the girl and I—of show business, the moon, the stock market, the stars, the future of Saratoga Springs, the price of earmuffs in Alaska, the quality of herring in Dave's Blue Room, the depression, the Prince of Wales, the changes in the styles, William Fox, the Atlantic Beach Club, and the possibilities of the younger generation.

Suddenly the girl turned to me.

"Are you happy?" she asked.

I blinked. This was a sudden switch in the conversation and it sounded as though it might lead somewhere. So, using routine No. 641, I smiled softly.

"And why shouldn't I be?" I returned. "What more could a man ask? A beautiful girl. The moon. The waves. The peace and quiet of it all. The—"

"Stop talking nonsense," she interrupted sharply. "I asked you a simple question. Are you happy?"

That, obviously, was the end of that.

"I suppose so," I returned. "What makes you ask?"

She sighed — and looked straight ahead.

"Because I'm not," she murmured. "There's something on my mind. And if I told you what it was, you'd be amazed. Or can you be amazed at your stage of the game?"

I didn't like that last crack, and I was honestly tempted to take a good poke at her nose. Her nose was growing shiny, anyhow. But, with an effort, I restrained myself. I sensed a story coming, and that was much more important at the moment.

"You'd be amazed how easily I can be amazed," I asserted brilliantly. "Go ahead and amaze me."

She paused for a few seconds. Then—

"You know George F——, don't you?" she asked.

"Certainly," I returned. "What about him?"

"I met him a year ago," she said, "and we became sweethearts. We're still sweethearts today."

"You don't say!" I ejaculated. "Sweethearts for a whole year. Well, now, that is amazing!"

The girl shook her head.

"Let's cut the kidding, Mark," she said seriously. "I want to get something off my chest, and I feel as though I can talk to you. Please don't kid me.

"In about two weeks from now, I'm going to Europe. Perhaps I'll never come back. I don't know. My mind is so unsettled and I'm terribly worried. George says—"

I stopped her. This thing was really getting beyond the gab stage. The girl seemed very blue and I felt sorry for her. So I, too, would grow serious. It certainly wouldn't do any harm to cheer her up a bit.

"Listen, kid," I said. "Without you saying another word, I know all the rest of your story. Let me talk for a moment—and perhaps you'll feel better when I've finished.

"You're worried about George and you're worried about parting from him. After all, since you've been sweethearts for a year, that would naturally be on your mind. But take a tip from me and forget about it."

She started to interrupt. I wouldn't let her.

"Just a minute," I went on, "and then you can have the floor. I've handled thousands of stories along these very lines, and you'll have to admit that I know a little something about such situations. If you'll listen to me, you can't go wrong.

"You're going to find it tough at first. It always is. That trip across the ocean is probably going to be a mighty lonesome affair. But as time goes by, you'll find yourself forgetting. The hurt will begin to fade. And very soon you'll discover that a new George has happened along to take the place of the old one.

"That's the way life goes, my sweets. And the sooner you are able to forget about George, the better you——"

This time she interrupted flatly and completely.

"But you don't understand," she said. "You're giving me a long story about something that doesn't mean anything. I don't care about George. I don't care if I never see him again."

I gulped.

"N-o-no?" I stammered. "Well, then, what is on your mind?"

She looked very tearful, indeed.

"It's my little dog, Prince," was her remarkable reply. "He's not very strong. I must take him along—and I'm terribly afraid he'll get seasick!" . . .

INASMUCH as I week-ended in Asbury in order to get a little sunshine, I might tell you that I ran true to form by visiting the cabarets at night and by sleeping all day. There wasn't any sunshine. But even if there had been, I wouldn't have known anything about it.

The clubs in this section are managing passably well. That is, a few of them are. The Lido had a neat crowd the night I was there. And the Ross-Fenton Farm, one of the most beautiful dine-and-dance spots in the United States, was doing an excellent business.

Some of the smaller spots, however, are finding the depression mighty tough to combat. I sat in one place that harbored but four parties, including my own. A little dancer, who evidently hadn't been around very much, was sitting at our table after the show. She looked around at the few couples who were dancing and smiled happily.

"Gee," she breathed, "this is wonderful."

"What is?" I inquired.

"This crowd," she asserted gladly. "It's the biggest we've had since we opened!" . . .

DEEMS TAYLOR is telling a story of a well-known politician who was married to one of the homeliest women in New York. Yet, as the years went by, he seemingly remained extremely devoted to her. No matter where he went, she was always with him. Regardless of the occasion, she was by his side.

He was a big man—but it seemed to some of his friends that he could be still bigger if his wife could be left out of the picture at certain times. One night at a large dinner a pal asked him about the situation.

"John," he said, "I know you'll forgive me for getting personal because it's for your own good. We all like your wife and all that, but she does get on our nerves sometimes. Why do you always bring her with you?"

The politician grinned ruefully.

"It's very simple," he replied. "If I didn't take her with me I'd have to kiss her goodbye."

The old order changeih. In other days, it was news when a man bit a dog. Today it's news when the same guy bites a sandwich . . .

"The County Fair" On Sheridan Bill

"Attorney for Defense" In Enright

Edmund Lowe and Constance Cummings are on the Enright screen in "Attorney For The Defense." Edmund is cast as the "mouthpiece." While Edmund goes about practicing the law complications arise and not the least of the complications is a girl played by Constance. To be sure there's a love theme in the picture.

Local Girl Dancing In New Patio

Collette, the acrobatic dancing star now at Eddie Klein's and Fred Sanders' Pati, is the stage name for Margie Barth, a Pittsburgh girl and daughter of Mamie Barth, well-known dance instructress here.

Miss Barth, who received her early training from her mother, has been on the professional stage for several years, recently returning from a long engagement in Europe.

Canada Rum Laws Curb Beer Making

WINDSOR, Ont., June 23.—(INS.)—Conflict between dominion and provincial laws today prevented families in this region from making home brew of more than 4.4 alcoholic content legally.

Magistrate W. A. Smith ruled that beer of higher alcoholic content is in violation of the Ontario Liquor Control Act. He found Herman Decaire guilty of possessing beer of higher alcoholic content than 4.4 and fined him $100.

Marathon Dancers Near 400-Hour Mark

Fourteen couples and three girl solos were still dancing at Motor Square Garden, where the endurance marathon contest is nearing the 400-hour mark. At noon today the contest will have gone 399 hours. The last entry to drop from the ranks was Mattie Lamar, Fifth avenue, who dropped out after dancing 352 hours. Miss Marie Mahoney, who has been dancing alone for seven days, will observe her nineteenth birthday today.

A Married Man Should Treat Wife as Well as Mother

Who should come first with a man—Mamma or the Missus?

Lucille's hubby votes for Mamma. According to him, Mamma is the big heroine who "gave up everything for him," while a wife is just something a fellow accumulates but should never take seriously.

"I am getting so frantic that I am afraid it will soon be a case of his having to choose between her and me; and it is simply breaking my heart, for I do love him," poor Lucille moans.

Is he right to feel that way?

Should a wife always come second; or is the new life that he and she have embarked on more important than the old life he left?

"Dear Sally—

"Please help me, won't you? I am simply frantic, and I don't know what to do. Here is my question:

"Who do you think should come first—a man's wife or his mother? My husband says that his mother should, and so far as he is concerned, she does.

"His mother simply winds him around her finger. He is afraid to say 'no' to her about anything, although he can say it fast enough to me. Should we both ask him to do something for us, he would do what she asked and refuse me. No matter what I want him to do, if she calls for him he will drop that and do what she wants.

"The only place he ever takes me is over to see her, or maybe to an occasional movie. I can plan for days to go some place together on Sunday and then she'll say to him: 'Are you coming over to dinner, Sunday?' and right away he will answer, 'Why, yes; of course;' when he knows we've had other plans.

"He will buy her things while I go without, and if I say anything about it he excuses himself by saying 'She is my mother! She worked and sacrificed to raise me, and she has a right to what she needs.'

GETTING DISCOURAGED

"He does love me, in his way, I know, but I just don't seem to count with him at all, compared to her. He thinks he owes her first choice in everything.

"I just can't stand it much longer. It has just about come to the point where, much and deeply as I love him, I feel that I will have to make him choose between us. I don't know what else to do. What can you do with a man like that?

"It isn't that I don't like his mother. She is nice, and I do like her; but I think it is selfish of her to expect all the breaks. I just can't call my soul my own, the way things are. Our home and our life seem to be just incidents, compared to her, and I can't stand it. Sometimes I think I'll go crazy. Please help me. "LUCILLE."

Yes, I know, youngster, it's maddening always to be "treated second best;" and of course he's wrong. He does owe his mother love, respect and service, but he owes still more to his marriage.

He wasn't born to serve mamma. He was born to take his place in life—to serve life—and he will serve life by making a success of marriage. If his mother keeps him from doing that, she will defeat the very purpose for which she brought him into the world.

AFRAID TO GROW UP

That, Lucille, is the truth about every marriage; but it's very hard for us foolish humans to face the truth. Usually we must be coaxed along and husbands are no exception to the rule.

Your husband is still only too willing to be a little boy to his mother. That isn't only because he loves mamma; it's largely because he is afraid to grow up and become a man. You'll have to help him overcome that fear; but you can't do it by belittling the woman who meant so much to him through all his helpless years. If you're wise, you'll enlist her as a partner—ask her to help you make him take his home seriously.

You admit she is a fine woman. Then take your trouble to her as you have to me. Don't take away her precious chance to serve life, leaving her bankrupt. Give her a new and larger chance to serve. Make her feel that she now has a daughter who needs her, as well as a son. Make a chum of her, instead of a rival. And here's betting you win, little girl.

Sometimes I wonder if other shoppers besides myself start out to get something in particular and come home with a great many things in general.

It seems that I always find exactly the hat or shoes I want on the day that I start out to buy a dress or stationery.

And on the day that I go particularly to purchase stockings or a bathrobe that is the day I discover a writing case or a paper weight I just can't resist buying.

It seems that I invariably find just what I have been looking for on the day that I am not looking for it.

I sometimes think my adventures in shopping might entitle me to membership in the Explorers' Club.

Madge's Story of Letter Stirs Husband's Suspicions

Harry Underwood nodded a grave assent to Dicky's remark that Bret Harte's famous poetical comment upon the ways of the "heathen Chinee" would apply aptly to the message which our small boys had brought from the fence, and I had taken from the wounded man in our library.

"I agree with you," he said, "yet the pledged word of a Chinese is generally—"

"Sacred, of course—" Dicky rose and strolled to the end of the veranda before adding—"to whatever they pledge. Just consider here what they promise, and what they leave unsaid. D'ye mind repeating their message again, Madge, just as old Whoosis in there gave it to you?"

"'They go away, all but one man to watch, and they hurt nobody any more if you do one thing for them; plomise when Lee Chow comes you fix so head man bad mens meet Lee Chow in house or near here, and talky-talk.'"

MEN SUSPICIOUS

"It all rests upon the interpretation they give to 'nobody,'" he said. "For myself, I'm inclined to think it means 'nobody now here,' and that they are making a mental reservation concerning Lee Chow and Hugh Grantland."

I turned to him aghast.

"Then," I said tremulously, "if we put the white cloth upon the fence when Lee Chow and—and—Hugh arrive, it may mean that we are betraying them to their—"

"I fancy you can still your fluttering heart over that particular fear," Dicky said unpleasantly. "You perhaps forget that Harry and I and your father with his various henchmen, will be very much on the job when the famous 'talky-talk' is staged.

PROTECTION PLANNED

"You can rest assured that neither the noted war hero nor his mandarin friend will be sent out into No Man's Land unprotected. There will be an effective barrage from the farmhouse artillery, and 17 Chinks shall bite the dust ere one grizzled hair—prematurely, I grant you, but still grizzled—of either hero be stirred from his slicked scalp."

He had begun the speech with venom, I knew that by the glint of his eyes. But when, overcome by its sheer absurdity, Harry Underwood and I broke into involuntary laughter, he started angrily, and then, accepting defeat with his usual sportsmanship, grinned widely.

"Well! You get what I mean?" he said defensively.

"Yes, we acquire you, O Stephanos." Harry Underwood cribbed fragrantly "and that little matter having been settled, the next thing before the meeting is the question of the white handkerchief which shall convey to these gentry outside our friends' receipt of their letter, and our willingness to arrange a meeting between Lee Chow and 'head man bad mens.' To tie or not to tie? What is the sense of the meeting?"

"Oh, I suppose we've got to give them the signal," Dicky said, in a tone expressing his boredom with the whole situation.

"And you?" Mr. Underwood smiled at me.

"I vote 'Aye'," I said.

"Then it's unanimous. I'll prepare the hanky. I suppose we'd better let Bill and Hank tie it on?"

"Sure thing," Dicky agreed, and Mr. Underwood rose as if to go. I jumped up also, in a panic. I had no desire for a tete-a-tete with my husband in his present mood.

"I'd better see if Katherine needs me," I said hurriedly.

"Harry will put that question to her on his way out, won't you, my cabbage." He turned to Mr. Underwood with a broad grin, which I feared held no mirth in it.

Furs in Summertime

If you are the possessor of a valuable fur coat it is wise to pay the very small sum reputable fur firms ask for storage over the summer months. Then you are not continually worried if it is safe and free from moths. If you have only one or two smaller pieces of fur to put away, thoroughly clean them and then store in a suit box.

How to Keep Well -:- -:-

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

To Weigh Too Little as Dangerous as Weighing Too Much

Most health authorities advise and constantly stress the dangers of overweight, while too little attention is given the dangers of underweight, which, neglected, may cause serious disorders of the body. To be underweight is abnormal and inconsistent with good health.

Dr. Copeland

Individuals who are underweight are more susceptible than others to infectious diseases and chronic ailments.

Though diabetes is more commonly seen in persons who are overweight, it is frequently found in thin persons.

A recent review of statistics gathered by various insurance companies reaffirms the belief that tuberculosis is more common in underweight individuals than in those of normal weight or overweight, and shows that the death rate from tuberculosis among those markedly overweight is almost negligible.

Tuberculosis in women has increased within recent years. Perhaps this may be explained by the fad of careless reducing which has become so popular amongst women. Many women know they are underweight and take pride in it. They omit important and nourishing foods from their diet for fear they may gain weight. The atttempt to regain youthful slimness by severe dieting should never be encouraged.

Normal weight for the child is important. It is the most accurate index as to whether the child is making proper progress. The child of normal weight or overweight is healthier than the underweight child. Children who are underweight have low resistance to infectious and constitutional diseases, and show signs of mental as well as physical backwardness.

In certain families there is a hereditary tendency toward leanness. These people are usually small and slender, or tall and thin, with a delicate bony structure. They are usually alert and active and are commonly described as being "nervous" and "high strung." Thinness in such families can be easily corrected.

To overcome underweight, it is necessary first to determine the cause. It may be hereditary, or due to improper food, anxiety, worry or a definite constitutional disturbance. Many cases are due merely to the lack of proper rest and recreation.

Frequently, too underweight is caused by overactivity of the thyroid gland.

Persons who are underweight should have at least 10 to 12 hours of sleep at night, and, whenever possible, a nap of 15 minutes to a half hour in the afternoon. All digestive disturbances, such as "biliousness," indigestion and constipation, should be corrected. The home conditions should provide for proper rest, relaxation and the necessary recreation.

The diet must be nutritious, for it is impossible to gain weight without proper food. At least a quart of milk should be taken daily, also fresh fruits, vegetables, cream, cream soups and plenty of butter.

If your appetite is poor and you find it difficult to gain weight, consult with your physician. A complete physical examination may reveal the underlying cause of your underweight.

Answers to Health Queries

D. M. Q.—What do you advise for discharging ears?

A.—This is a condition which must have medical attention. Consult an ear specialist for treatment.

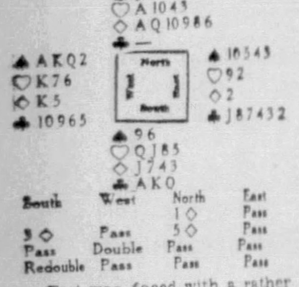
Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Doubling for Penalties

In doubling suit contracts, it has been found wise to provide for a 2-trick margin in the prospect of defeat, as it is not worth while to double a contract that is doomed to defeat by only 1 trick. The difference in the points scored as a penalty is too slight to be worthy of consideration, whereas the information given by the Double frequently makes possible a contract which would not otherwise be made. There is an additional rule that most players find it wise to follow, and that is not to double a close contract when you do not have the lead and your partner may make an unfortunate Opening lead. The hand below is an example of this type of unwise Double.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



South	West	North	East
		1 ◇	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

East was faced with a rather undesirable choice of an Opening lead. After much study, he decided to open the doubleton heart, leading the 9 spot. The Knave was played from Dummy. West covered with the King, and North won with the Ace. A heart was returned, won with the Queen in Dummy, three rounds of clubs led, and North's losing spades discarded on them. The diamond Knave was then led and finessed, and North thus made all the tricks, scoring 200 points for making his redoubled contract, 800 points for overtricks and an additional 300 points, the redoubled value of the tricks scored—a difference of 1,300 points, based on two events: West's unwise Double and East's unfortunate choice of a lead.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a two-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

Today's Question

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Double	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	3 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

What should South lead, holding:

♠ K J 8 4 ♡ Q 10 6 ◇ K 10 4 ♣ A 7 3

Answer: Club 3. Because of the tenace positions in all suits, the underlead of the club Ace apparently offers the greatest possibilities of defending the hand. This may gain an extra trick for North and South.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married very soon. Do you think the following procedure is correct for a simple wedding?

1. We will have the apartment in which we intend to live ready. Those of our friends who wish to see us married are to meet us there and then go to the minister's home with us. After the ceremony we will all return to the apartment for a party.

2. As this will be a second marriage for both of us I am at a loss to know just what to wear. My husband-to-be will wear a business suit. P.

1. It would, I think, be much more dignified and more appropriate, if you and your husband-to-be and your attendants meet at the minister's home, have the ceremony performed there and then return to your new home to receive your friends there.

2. You should wear either an afternoon dress of some charming material . . . triple-chiffon, for instance, or one of the lovely new chalk crepes . . . perhaps made with a jacket or shoulder cape, or if your prefer, your traveling costume.

The Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am expecting a young man for dinner some evening very soon and he will be my guest, and not my parents' guest. I thought I would be hostess, but mother disagrees. What do you say?

2. Does the guest sit at the right of the hostess? B.

1. I agree with your mother. She is the hostess of your home, and when you have guests, it would be most ungracious not to have her keep her same place at the head of the table of your home. Please don't do this.

2. Yes, this young man would sit at the right of your mother, the hostess.

A Greeting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As I never wear a hat, what should I do when meeting a lady or anyone to whom I should lift my hat if I wore one? JACK.

The only thing that you can do is to bow graciously, and say "How do you do" . . . as a dignified greeting to older people or to friends whom you know in a rather formal way . . . and "Hello" in the fashion of greeting those of your own age, or younger, those whom you know informally.

Now— you can have gleaming white teeth in just a few days. Science has discovered the way to remove ugly yellow and stain—whiten teeth 3 shades in 3 days! It is called the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Try it—use a half-inch of this scientific dental cream on a dry brush twice a day. You'll see a marked change overnight.

When Kolynos enters the mouth it instantly becomes a refreshing FOAM that removes yellow and stain and destroys the millions of mouth germs—190 million in 15 seconds—that cause most tooth and gum troubles. It stimulates the gums and purifies the mouth. Then it CLEANS TEETH RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL, NATURAL WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY. No ordinary brushing can make teeth so white. No mouthwash can give the mouth a cleaner taste.

Why have dull, yellow teeth? Clean them sparkling white and keep them sound and free from decay this way. Buy a large tube of Kolynos.

COURT ORDERS 2 WOMEN FREED

Nettie Gordon and her sister-in-law, May Gordon, rooming house proprietresses, of East North avenue, were free today of charges of receiving goods stolen by the Considine robber gang.

Philip Moran and William Miller, confessed members of Robert Considine's gang, testified in the womens' trial and failed to uphold the stories they told the grand jury which indicted the pair. Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk, who was prosecuting the case, was left without evidence. Visiting Judge James A. McLaughrey, of Mercer county, directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

Moran, alleged to have sold $450 Hudson seal coats to the women for $25, and $125 dresses and fur-trimmed coats for $15, declared on the witness stand that it was only on hearsay that he had told the grand jury of the transactions. Miller admitted selling dresses to girls who room in the Gordon apartment, but said he did not tell them they were stolen.

In this day of the depression, which is no respecter of any class, many of the social world will remain in town this summer. Of these some will occupy their summer homes in Sewickley Heights or in the Fox Chapel district.

A number, who have summer homes, will be away, however, with Canada leading in favor. The George S. Olivers and their family, George T. Oliver II, Laura Oliver, a debutante; Persifor Smith Oliver and Bradley Cummings Oliver, will be among the Canadian visitors. They will be at their summer place, Dungannon Farm, Cobourg, Canada.

Around the first of July, the Almer H. Orrs and their daughter, Elizabeth, and son, Almer H. Orr, Jr., will go, as usual, to the Ross Mountain Club, New Florence, Pa. Others who'll go to the Ross Mountain Club are the William M. Robinsons, of Westminster Place, their daughter, Margaret, and their sons, William M. Robinson, Jr., and Joseph Gibson Robinsons, and the Charles A. Fishers and their son, Howard Fisher.

Going to Mountains

The Theodore F. Smiths, the Herbert A. Mays and the W. B. Todds and their families will be found at their summer homes in Beaver Valley with the Smiths and Todds on Patterson Heights, Beaver Falls, and the Mays in River road, Beaver.

144 Sign Up for First Two-Week Vacation Period at Redwing, Others on Waiting List

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

On hundred and forty-four girls have been signed up for the first two-week vacation period at Camp Redwing, Allegheny County Girl Scout camp near Ribold Station. And there is even a waiting list for both the first and second of the four periods. Camp will open on July 4.

The same rules that have always maintained Redwing's high standard will again be in force—scouts must be in good physical condition, certified to by a physician; no food or sweets of any kind will be delivered at camp and Sunday is the only visitors' day. Scout laws, of course, are the laws of the camp and through the patrol and court of honor system the girls have an opportunity to govern themselves and to develop in leadership.

Camp activities include swimming, hiking, outdoor cooking, country dancing, pioneering, dramatics, puppetry, story telling, archery, boating, wood craft, willow basketry, leather work, tin can work, pottery, sketching, pinhole photography, bead work and nature work. A staff of 30 enthusiastic and capable young women under the camp chief Miss Isabel Hummel will supervise all activity. On the camp committee are Mrs. E. V. Babcock, Mrs. R. V. Bingay, Mrs. C. H. Borntraeger, Mrs. H. R. Hilliard and Mrs. C. L. Peirce, Jr.

Following the new—and you must admit sensible—idea, the College Club had no prizes yesterday at its benefit card party at "Stone Gables," Mrs. F. F. Rohrer's lovely home in Churchill road. The guests fairly overflowed the house, tables being placed in every room, as well as on the terraces and lawns. Mrs. Rohrer had as her house guest over the party her niece, Miss Isabel Martin, of Beaver Falls.

NEW DAY FROCKS USE DOUBLE BIAS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 23.—The triangle line is more and more in evidence in the new Paris dresses. Bias cutting—so important in getting soft, smooth surfaces with as few seams as possible—marks a big majority of all frocks that are not in the taileur class. The double bias line, which ends by forming a triangle, appears to be the distinguishing feature of many of the new afternoon dresses.

AUGUSTABERNARD was one of the first dressmakers to use the triangle to put fullness into skirts. She inserts a triangular or apexed godet at the center back of all dresses made of silks or light-weight woolen—thereby keeping the smooth line around the hips in company with ample fullness below.

CALLOT MAKES effective use of these triangle lines in a summery afternoon dress of printed chiffon. Avoiding any too-complicated cut, she incrusts bands of the fabric in criss-cross formation at the front of the skirt, pointing them downwards at the sides and finishing them in loose panels. The same triangle effect is carried out in a little bias ruffle, sewn on the blouse portion to give the effect of a bolero.

* * *

GIBBONS FINDS DEMOCRATS 'SOCKING'

Fighting Has Started at Chicago, He Declares; Family Row in Prospect

By FLOYD GIBBONS
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Hello, everybody. And did you hear—they're sparring in the center of the ring — yes, socker!—they are trading lefts—light lefts—that dance in and out like rapiers—a left to the face and a right to the body and one, two, and they are against the ropes—but fighting and fighting gamely.

Just like the Schmelly-Sharking shell-out, the Democratic family row of 1932 is getting going out here on the shores of peaceful Lake Mich. The boys and girls of the party that adopted Thomas Jefferson and was adopted by Will Rogers, are dropping off the trains and saying things—mostly nasty.

INTRA-PARTY STRIFE

Several days ago, all the Demmykrats of all breeds and spellings said all the nasty things they could think of about the Republican convention, the team of Herb and Charlie and the bone-dry repeal plank. They used up all that matter in a couple of days and now they have started on one another.

In these last days before the big fight starts, there are two places for Democrats to say things. One is upon departing the home town.

The other place is upon arrival in Chicago. Just as the Democrats step off the train, they unbutton another wallop at the gent they describe as the only solitary figure standing in the way of Democratic victory in November.

CHICAGO TROUBLES

Chicago isn't taking the convention seriously yet. Chicago has troubles of its own. The city made the school teachers work without pay and the Mayor led a pay army—a pay expeditionary force—to Washington to dig up the money.

The bonus army down there more or less has the same idea. But the Italian tenors and the Swedish nightingales of the Chicago Opera Company refused to be led into the same trap as the Chicago teachers and the unemployed, unpaid veterans. The opera singers refused to sing unless they were paid. Wise song birds. That shows their foreign training. No dough. No sing. So Chicago will have to worry along this year without opera.

But from the way the anvil chorus amongst the Democrats has already begun, there's a strong prospect that the Democratic convention follies will make up for the loss.

We'll see. Or at least we'll hear. Anyhow, socker—they're sparring in the center of the ring! Oh, boy, what will the decision be in this fight?

Roosevelt Foes Unite

colored red in the Roosevelt map that you think you will get?"

He replied with a grin.

"Well, there's Minnesota. There's a contest there, and we may put up a stop light for that."

He asked the reporters:

"By the way, I didn't notice my color on the map. Was it brown?"

Al said he had not as yet seen any of the leaders of the anti-Roosevelt wing of the party in his short time here, nor had he seen Curry. Had he seen William G. McAdoo, who is directing the Garner movement?

"No, I haven't seen Mr. McAdoo."

WOULD SEE McADOO

Then he added quickly:

"But I'm not averse to it. I'm pretty easy to talk to."

"Yes, going up in the elevator."

Had he talked with Gov. Roosevelt by long distance since reaching Chicago?

He grinned widely at that one.

"No, I know that number pretty well, too, but it hasn't called me."

Smith scoffed at the idea of a first ballot nomination for Roosevelt, which Farley so persistently claims. He said:

"It doesn't look like it to me."
"How many will it go?"
"No living man can tell."

One inquirer asked Al whether in his statement yesterday saying it was not the time to talk about whether he would support the ticket whoever was nominated he had meant to infer that he would not support Gov. Roosevelt. He replied:

"I simply said I didn't think it was the time to talk about that. We have a big job here to do."

One reporter said:

"But the inference, Governor?"

He snapped:

"Take it your own way. And that's the answer to that."

Another question dealt with possible vice presidential candidates.

His momentary loss of good humor came back to him. He said:

"The best answer to that is that I refer you to the musical numbers in 'Of Thee I Sing.'"

This is the stage hit in New York which presents a biting satire on the impotence of vice presidents in the American scheme of government.

STATES HOLD KEY

New York and Pennsylvania hold the key to the situation. They can make or break the Roosevelt candidacy. Between them they have 170 delegates, of which 105 are in dispute as between the Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt forces.

Meanwhile a series of clashes between Roosevelt leaders and supporters of the other candidates featured a brief session today of the unofficial platform committee.

The major clash came when McAdoo proposed a tentative platform be drafted by a sub-committee of seven members. The Roosevelt forces immediately protested, led by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, charging the unofficial committee was meeting without any authority and should take no action on drafting a platform until the convention meets.

It was apparent the Roosevelt forces feared they might be outmaneuvered in the unofficial committee.

Roosevelt Aide Places Economic Issues First

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP.)—Gilbert M. Hitchcock, the Roosevelt chairman of the Democratic resolutions committee, declared today for a party platform emphasizing economic issues rather than prohibition.

Hitchcock voiced the views of other spokesmen for Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, as the Democratic platform-making committee met for the first time. He advocated a slash in the tariff and a policy of measured inflation. Hitchcock said:

"We will have to meet the prohibition issue, because of what the Republicans did, but I do not consider it a party issue. Personally, I voted against the Eighteenth Amendment as a member of the Senate, but I am not what would be called a repealist.

"I imagine the platform will provide a direct statement on prohibition, probably calling for the submission of the repeal amendment, but I do not think all members of the party should be bound or pledged to the policy of repeal.

"We have a real issue with the Republicans on the economic crisis confronting the nation."

Hitchcock, former Democratic senator from Nebraska, was selected last night by the Roosevelt forces as chairman of the resolutions committee. All of the Roosevelt leaders here are emphasizing the economic issues and demanding that the party base its campaign on these rather than on prohibition.

'ALFALFA BILL' WANTS ROGERS ON TICKET

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP.)—Gov. William H. Murray came out of the Southwest today with a prediction that Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, would not win the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Oklahoma Governor, who holds the 22 delegates of his home state and one from South Dakota, stepped from the railroad train, pulled a big black fedora hat over one eye, wound a brown scarf around his neck and shouted to a group of photographers:

WANTS ROGERS

The Governor then declared he would support Jouett Shouse for permanent chairman of the convention; that he was against changing the two-thirds rule, and that he would prefer Will Rogers as his running mate, if he were nominated. He said:

"Will, you know, is a good Oklahoma man, too."

The Governor predicted a fight over the Eighteenth Amendment in committee, but refused to commit himself on the prohibition question beyond saying:

"I'm not a fool about prohibition either way. That means I'm against writing a plank for the fanatics or the hoodlums. The majority of both parties are sensible people. Write the platform for them."

COUNTRY'S SAVIORS

Propped up in a chair at his headquarters at the Congress Hotel a little later with a barber cropping his long gray hair, Murray swung one shoeless foot and said:

"We've got to save this country. We will have to deal with the economic questions and not the prohibition question.

"Whoever in the h—— knew of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., advocating anything for the restoration of states rights."

Murray interrupted his interview to order a pot of black coffee, a pot of hot water and to roar that he didn't want any milk in it.

Senate States Action On Philippines Bill

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP.)—Senate leaders agreed today to take up the Hawes-Cutting Philippine independence bill as soon as the Senate disposes of the pending unemployment relief measure.

Roosevelt's Son, Reporter, to Quiz Al

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith is going to be asked within the next few days exactly how he feels toward Franklin D. Roosevelt—and his questioner will be James Roosevelt, son of the New York Governor.

The tall young Roosevelt is here to write the story of the Democratic national convention for a newspaper.

He said:

"One of the first things I'm going to do is to interview Smith and get the real lowdown on this Smith-Roosevelt situation."

M'ADOO SEES GARNER WIN

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, June 23.—"We're going to victory with Garner."

Thus, William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, sounded the battle cry of the Democratic cohorts massing to back Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, for the party's logical compromise candidate for the presidency of the United States.

The late Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law, chairman of the California delegation pledged "to the limit" for Garner and one of Democracy's outstanding leaders, arrived here in his private plane yesterday to join the generals of the Garner-for-President campaign.

Commenting on the campaign map with which Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, is claiming 691 of the 770 delegates required for the Democratic nomination, McAdoo said:

"It's a pretty looking map, but I remember in 1912 Champ Clark went into the Democratic convention with the same kind of a picture, but he never was nominated."

McAdoo predicted that in addition to the pledged Texas and California delegations, Garner would win tremendous support not only from uninstructed delegates, but from large numbers of instructed delegates.

Choice of Pennsylvania Delegation Mystery.

—By MARK SHIELDS—

CHICAGO, June 23.—Until the middle of next week, when a vote is taken on the nomination of a Democratic candidate for the presidency, the complexion of the Pennsylvania delegation as between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and Al Smith must remain a mystery.

Mr. Shields

Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, Roosevelt manager, says the New York Governor will have 66 of the state's 76 votes. Friends of Smith in Pennsylvania assert the leading candidate will have no more than 45 votes.

Manifestly the actuality lies somewhere between these two divergent claims, but just where no one may say with any degree of accuracy.

Yesterday, however, there was a development which may or may not have a significant bearing upon the ultimate destination of the Pennsylvania votes.

Warren Van Dyke, state chairman and Roosevelt supporter, elected under the auspices of Guffey and James A. Farley, Democratic state chairman of New York and national Roosevelt manager, sat through the day in an informal meeting of the resolutions committee called to draft a tentative platform.

The delegates to the convention from Pennsylvania have never designated a member of the resolutions committee. The post will be filled when the delegation caucuses Sunday at the Stevens Hotel. In order to have the state represented in the informal gatherings it was necessary that a mail canvass be carried on and that the proper authorization be given to a Pennsylvania representative.

Van Dyke selected himself temporarily as three other aspirants for the place are in the field, and it was thought best that their pretensions should be fought out in the caucus.

According to Van Dyke he has received the favorable vote of 46 of the state 76 delegates.

Only 50 Votes Safe For Roosevelt

The assumption is fair, therefore, that the 46 represents the basic Roosevelt strength in Pennsylvania, and that there are 30 delegates whose affiliations are with Roosevelt or in doubt. It is inconceivable that Van Dyke would not have obtained as large a vote of confidence as he could reliably count in his favor. In other words, anything above 46 that Roosevelt receives as a candidate for the presidential nomination will be velvet.

This bears out the repeated forecast in this column that today the Roosevelt people can with assurance count on approximately 50 votes, and no more, on the first ballot. It should be borne in mind, however, that developments of the next few days may entirely change this picture.

Included in this 50 are only three from Allegheny County. Malcolm McDonald, candidate for county chairman against Dave Lawrence, is for Smith. There are six other delegates who, under the delegates' statement," which they signed on their nominating petitions, and a subsequent pamphlet from the "Roosevelt for President League," can do little else but vote for Smith on the early ballots, as little as that is to their taste.

Support for Popular Choice Is Solicited

On the back of the nominating petitions is a statement which delegate candidates may or may not sign, as they prefer. The Roosevelt delegates signed. The statement reads:

"I hereby declare to the voters of my political party in the (blank) Congressional District that if elected and in attendance as a delegate to the national convention of the party I shall with all fidelity, to the best of my judgment and ability, in all matters coming before the convention, support that candidate for President of the United States who shall have received the highest number of votes cast in the (blank) Congressional District by the voters of my party for said office at the ensuing primary, and shall use all honorable means within my power to aid in securing the nomination for such candidate for President."

In addition to the signatures to that statement, there was sent out in behalf of these six delegates, all favoring Roosevelt, a statement which said:

"Our candidates for delegates to the national convention are pledged to support the popular choice for President in your district and we believe this is sound Democratic doctrine as it gives the voters direct share in choosing a presidential candidate. The opposition candidates do not promise to support the popular choice and are asking you to send them to the Chicago convention to vote for whom they please, which would certainly not be carrying out the idea of the popular primary."

Perplexing Questions Confront Delegates

That pamphlet was put out in the name of the "Roosevelt for President League," with offices in the Peoples' Bank Building. It was uttered in behelf of six candidates who did and do favor Roosevelt, but who were elected in districts which Smith carried and was put out at a time when the Smith candidacy was not seriously considered.

How can that pledge be abrogated? There was hot criticism of delegate candidates who

NAME PRISONER IN HOLDUP

Charles Shaffer, 22, a workhouse inmate, was held for court by Justice of the Peace James S. McGinley, of Millvale, in connection with the holdup a year ago of the office of Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, of Millvale.

Mehrlich and Police Chief Philip Mitzel, of Millvale, on a visit to the workhouse yesterday, recognized Shaffer, a convicted holdup man, as the thug who menaced them and State Highway Patrolman Larry Moore with two revolvers, according to Mitzel. Shaffer denied participating in the holdup, but Mehrlich and Mitzel obtained an order from Judge Elder W. Marshall to take the prisoner for arraignment before McGinley.

A scar over Shaffer's eye led to the identification, Mehrlich and Mitzel said.

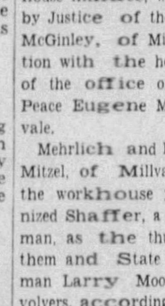
The officer's service pistols and $50 in cash were stolen in the holdup. Moore was dismissed from the patrol as a result of the robbery.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 23.

You are from now on going to hear every imaginable scheme brought out to get America to cancel the debts. In fact a "wow" of a one has just showed up. "We are to cancel the debts if Europe will not arm." That's original. The Liberty bond holders of America bribe Europe to disarm. We pay 'em five billion dollars if they promise us they will just struggle along on what guns they have and not be rash and spend their money foolishly on armaments. You can't hire a nation from buying a gun if they think they need one, any more than you can bribe folks not to carry an umbrella on rainy days. And by the way, what are they going to pay us for not arming?



Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

SCHENLEY PARK FETE OPPOSED BY TOTH

Foreign-Born Groups Urged To Forego 'Fantasies' for Real American Observance

Assailing the proposed All-Nations festival to be held in Schenley Park July 4, as unbecoming the celebration of Independence Day, John G. Toth, radio speaker on citizenship and patriotism, today urged foreign-born peoples to forego their "old world fantasies" for a genuine American observance.

According to the announced plan, sponsored by numerous societies and clubs and consular agencies, with William Bradford, president of the Rotary Club, of Pittsburgh, as the general chairman, 27 foreign-language organizations will participate in folk dances and songs in native costume.

SEES DESECRATION

Toth deplored what he termed the tendency of confusing Independence Day with "other gaities." He said:

"While we agree that the United States is a great cosmopolitan country, where all men enjoy equal rights and freedom, we do not feel that upon such a day as July 4, a national holiday, that our celebrations should cater to the countries from whom our ancestors sought relief from oppression.

"I consider it a great desecration to deviate from a form of loyal celebration in honor of real patriots who gave up their lives to create a nation that the world today looks up to.

"We can promote a just and firm and free peace throughout the world so that democracy everywhere may live without fear. We cannot do this with song and dance. It must be done by patriots who favor adequate American national defense.

URGES AMERICANISM

"It is wholly unnecessary to bring before the public a panoramic view of the various foreign groups and their customs, but as a whole let us consider ourselves, one and all, American citizens, either by birth or adoption and live up to this world's standards.

"I am almost certain that no other country in the world would stand for an all-nations festival on a day that is as sacred to them as Independence Day is to us."

Jury Acquits Muir In O'Malley Killing

David Muir, 28, of 507 Jacksonia street, was acquitted of a murder charge, after a half hour's deliberation by a jury in the court of Visiting Judge O. C. Kent, of Crawford County, late yesterday.

Muir was tried for the death of Lawrence P. O'Malley, 26, of 8 Marie place, whom he shot in self defense at 108 Eloise street, May 13. He testified O'Malley, a stranger, was drunk and attacked him with a knife.

Regulations for Tax On Jewelry Told

Under the new revenue tax on jewelry, whether real or imitation; precious and semi-precious stones, watches and clocks, opera glasses, lorgnettes, marine glasses, binoculars and field glasses, the manufacturer, producer or importer must pay a 10 per cent tax on the selling price, D. B. Hainer said in a circular explaining taxes on jewelry.

Under the regulations a jeweler is subject to the tax when he resets a ring or produces a taxable article by combining or assembling two or more articles. Surgical instruments, silver-plated ware, frames or mountings for spectacles or eyeglasses sold under $3 are exempt from taxes.

JURORS ACQUIT CONSTABLE

Jack Schneider, former First Ward constable, and James Kelly, were acquitted by a jury today on charge of conspiracy and forgery in an alleged attempt to register 'Louis Fisher in the Third District, First Ward, on a forged tax receipt last September. Fisher, also a defendant, who had changed his plea to guilty, was sentenced to one year in the workhouse.

The jury placed costs on the prosecutor, Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, but Judge W. H. McNaugher set them aside. The trial was a sequel to the fight for constable, won by Paul Walsh, who subsequently was convicted on a false registration charge and sentenced to one year in jail. He is at liberty pending outcome of an appeal.

Europeans Take And Forget Our Advice and Cash

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The White House now favors total prohibition of bombardments from the air. We're in favor of that if it includes broadcasts of political conventions.

Mr. Hoover would abolish tanks, gas, flame, bombs, planes, soldiers and boats. Let's also eliminate Belgian relief and concentrate at home. It's an awful shock these days to come face to face with a meatless Monday on a Thursday.

France has already rejected the White House plan and Premier Herriot is helping the cotton crop by stuffing it in his ears.

We've been suggesting things to Europe for 20 years. They take our advice and money and forget both.

In a way they establish a record by forgetting three things out of two because they forget us also.

If we must get gray hairs and wrinkles from worrying it's not a bad idea to accumulate 'em from worrying about ourselves.

COUNTY ROADS SALARIES CUT

Salary slashes in the Department of Highways, Bridges and Tunnels, which will amount to an annual saving of more than $70,000, have been voted by the County Commissioners and approved by the Salary Board.

This step completes the setup for the reorganized department. It follows a drastic reduction in the number of positions which occurred several weeks ago.

The salary of Vernon R. Covell, chief engineer in the Bureau of Bridges, was reduced from $7,000 to $5,000. Norman Abel, engineer of design, was cut from $5,000 to $3,000. The duties of most of the engineers have been considerably restricted with the decline in the volume of bond issue work.

Most of the personnel of the department received minor reductions. Commissioners, who have been struggling with the problem of balancing their budget, have cut more than $400,000 from the payroll of the department.

Derailed Car Hurts Woman in Auto

Mrs. A. J. Hobbs, of 409 Stanford avenue, Bellevue, was injured slightly early today when an Avalon street car left the rails in Federal street and crashed into the parked automobile in which she was seated. Mrs. Hobbs was treated at Allegheny General Hospital and later taken to her home.

Man Stabbed by Wife In Home Quarrel

Newton Gay, 23, a Negro, of 3021 Smallman street, was in a critical condition in West Penn Hospital today with a stab wound of the chest inflicted, police said, with a razor by his wife, Bertha, 25, during an argument in their home last night. The woman fled.

Evans to Address Homewood Veterans

Raymond D. Evans, assistant United States attorney, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Homewood Post No. 351, American Legion, which will be held Wednesday evening, July 6. Attorney Evans, a World War veteran, is considered an authority on narcotics.

300 TO LEAVE FOR CAPITAL TOMORROW

Women and Children Will Accompany Ex-Soldiers In Drive on Washington

The first "official" recruiting officer of Allegheny County's contingent of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces today was whipping into shape the second bonus brigade, 300 strong, including women and children, prepared to start for Washington at 4 a. m. tomorrow.

Pittsburgh's first organized army of women bonus marchers is scheduled to leave early next week for Washington, according to Mrs. George Huey, 5445 Penn avenue. Mrs. Harold McPherson, of 1307 Soles street, McKeesport, is organizing a women's army in that city to join with Mrs. Huey's army.

TRANSPORTATION PLANS

Mrs. Huey said she launched her women's division this week and is confident 100 women and children will join. It is planned to have the army transported in automobiles and trucks, with veterans as guards. She said a meeting would be held Friday or Saturday to complete plans and arrange for provisions and shelter.

She said:

"I believe it is the duty of every wife of a veteran encamped in Washington to join her husband."

Her husband has been in Washington for two weeks.

James J. McGrath, commander of the "Strip Troops" already intrenched at Camp Marks, in view of the Capitol at Washington, described the pitiable condition of his detachment's shelter at the camp in announcing plans for Friday's march. He is being assisted by B. F. Miller, commander of the East Liberty, Homewood and Brushton troops.

MANY VOLUNTEER

Already 300 veterans and their wives and children from the Strip district and other sections of the county have volunteered for the second march, McGrath said.

The marchers will leave from the old Exposition Building at the Point in trucks furnished by Pittsburgh business men, the leader explained. McGrath said it is hoped the trucks will carry supplies of sugar, milk and smoked meats, blankets and tents, as well as shoes and clothing for the women and children.

The Allegheny County veterans have the poorest accommodations of any group in the 16 "bonus" camps at Washington, according to McGrath. In spite of that, they have the cleanest sanitary record given by the Washington chief of police, he said.

Flying Lawyer May 'Bomb' Capital for Veterans

Cyrus A. Davis, the flying attorney, has been asked by a committee of bonus veterans to "bomb" Washington from the air in behalf of the Bonus Expeditionary Force. The "attack" is expected Saturday or Sunday.

Davis recently showered Pittsburgh twice from the air with milk bottle caps conveying the appeal of the Salvation Army.

The assault on the capital is intended to be effected with circulars addressed to Congress with this message:

"Whom did you turn to in 1917? Why are you forsaking them now?"

Knife Slayer Gets Term After Plea

Herbert McCaskill, 23, a Negro, of Heman street, today began serving two and one-half to five years in the penitentiary for voluntary manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Charles Kley, white, 33, of Pitcairn, whom McCaskill stabbed in a garage at 5726 Forbes street, April 17.

DEIGHAN APPROVES CONVENTION PLANS

Huge Parade Will Mark Legion's Meet Here

Convention arrangements for the Pennsylvania state department, American Legion, today were being speeded as State Adjutant James J. Deighan, of Philadelphia, general director, indorsed plans formulated by the local convention committee.

Deighan predicted 10,000 to 12,000 veterans will march in the closing day parade, expected to last six hours. He conferred yesterday with local officials at the convention headquarters in the William Penn Hotel. The convention will be held August 18-22.

Deighan said the Saturday parade should draw 50,000 spectators.

Church, Hospital Benefit by Will

The Salvation Army and the Knoxville Christian Church were each left $2,000, and the Children's Hospital, $1,000, by the will of Louisa Bagnall, of Pittsburgh, disposing of an estate valued at $94,000. William Alexander and Jennie Alexander were left one-half the residue, after bequests disposing of the other half.

Attorney Alexander E. Eckles, McKees Rocks, left an estate valued at $15,000 to his wife, Sara M. Eckles, after a bequest of $2,000 to a son, Lowry Eckles.

Dry Agents Fish Evidence From Allegheny River

Prohibition agents at a hearing before the United States Commissioner told of "fishing" from the Allegheny River a five-gallon bottle partly filled with moonshine whisky, which they said was thrown from a boathouse, moored near Madison avenue, when they were trying to gain entrance to execute a search warrant.

The defendants were John Plocenek, alleged steward, and Anna Sedor, a scrubwoman on the boat, charged with possession of the liquor recovered from the river. The raid occurred June 13.

The commissioner reserved his decision pending a test made of the alcoholic content of 20 barrels of beer found and seized the night before by dry agents along the river bank near the boathouse. The search warrant had been based on the assumption that the confiscated barrels of beer were intended for delivery to the houseboat.

KERR TO CHECK MAYVIEW FOOD BIDDING

Violation of Specifications Charged to Houston Firm, Instigator of Kline Case

City Controller James P. Kerr was asked by Council today to report to members violations by bidders of specifications for food and supplies at Mayview.

A communication from Joseph Vitchestain, editor of the National Labor Tribune, called Council's attention recently to allegations that violations of specifications were apparent. Included in the alleged violations were foodstuffs submitted and sold the city by the J. W. Houston Company.

It was John D. Houston, president of the company, who aired charges of misconduct in the Department of Supplies that resulted in the conviction of Mayor Charles H. Kline and former Director Bertram L. Succop. The violations charged to the Houston Company were the only ones mention in the Supplies Department's report to Council. Councilman P. J. McArdle then moved that all violations by bidders be reported.

Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap reported that six dozen cans of asparagus, a shipment of tapioca, 25 dozen cans of diced carrots and cocoa for Mayview and the Leech Farm Tuberculosis Hospital had been rejected by inspectors from the Controller's office.

The Houston Company, in correspondence with Dunlap and the Controller, explained these as errors on asparagus shipments, but contended it had bid according to specifications and samples on the other commodities.

It was charged by the inspectors that the asparagus cans submitted by the company weighed only one pound when specifications called for one pound and 15 ounces.

ODD FELLOWS TO ENTERTAIN

F. of Pennsylvania are expected to be present.

Mr. Powley

Mr. Daugherty

The delegation will arrive tomorrow night by bus and will spend the night at the Fort Pitt Hotel. A committee of 100 men and women will greet them. Saturday will be spent in sight-seeing. That night there will be a banquet at the hotel. Sunday morning the party will visit Fort Pitt and the Odd Fellows' Orphans' Home in Davis avenue, and the Rebekah Home on McClure avenue. Norval R. Daugherty, of Pittsburgh, deputy grand master of the state, will lead the reception committee.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If the bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Chile Halts Trains In Fear of Strikers

SANTIAGO, June 23.—(INS.)—Several important express trains were canceled today as a protective measure for passengers whom the government feared might be harmed by strikers.

Other trains continued to be operated by government troops, although the backbone of the general strike appeared to have been broken by drastic action taken by the Davila junta government.

MAH BELIEVED SLAIN IN RAID

TOKIO, June 23.—(AP.)—Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, hop-skip-and-jump Manchurian military impresario, was reported "probably dead" again today.

Press dispatches from Harbin said Japanese aviators bombed and destroyed a hamlet 50 miles southwest of Hailun, where Gen. Mah had set up headquarters for his campaign against the Pu-Yi government.

If the general was at home, they said, he almost certainly was killed.

In the last year he has been on three sides of the Manchurian campaign. He first appeared as defender of the Nonni River Bridge and Tsitsihar against the Japanese invasion. Then he became a principal figure in the new Pi-Yu government at Changchun. Recently he left Changchun, saying he participated in the government there only as a spy, and opened his campaign against it and the Japanese in the north.

wanted to come to Chicago to "vote for whom they please." Can delegates party to that criticism hold up their heads if they vote contrary to the wishes of their constituents? Will not their jibes at other candidates be the veriest hogwash?

The rival candidates at least would not have misled their followers, as would any delegate who voted for Roosevelt in a district favorable to Smith.

Moreover, what constitutes the discharge of "all honorable means to elect a candidate?" Does a one-ballot vote do that? Isn't it imperative that the votes be cast at least in the second ballot to determine if the preferential candidate is gaining strength?

This is a question of morality and ethics which should admit of little argument, but, being political, its determination must await the meeting of the delegates in Chicago Sunday. I venture, knowing some of this sextet and their conception of public trust, that Roosevelt will not receive more than three votes out of Allegheny County on the first ballot.

Or am I just a sap?

VOTE MACHINES FACE TEST BY EXPERTS

Commissioners to Call in Engineers After Mechanic Shows Operating Faults

County Commissioners will seek expert opinion on the 1,100 voting machines which Allegheny County bought for $1,120,900.

The Commissioners, after watching B. B. Sklar, former Commercial Equipment Company mechanic, vote seven times for one candidate and successfully jam the machine, decided to ask for suggestions from a committee of three mechanical engineers, whose names will be revealed later.

WITNESS TEST

The demonstration was conducted by Sklar and witnessed by the three Commissioners, county solicitors, officials of the Bureau of Elections, representatives of the voting machine companies, heads of the League of Women Voters and of the Citizens' Voting Machine Committee.

With the air of a conjuror performing a trick, Sklar slid back a celluloid cover, twisted the mechanism, and voted seven times for one candidate.

Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, who has been handling the county's negotiations with the voting machine companies, declared Sklar was able to do this because the celluloid had recently been mutilated in a similar demonstration, and was not the right length to properly fit the mchine.

OTHER DEFECTS

Other defects pointed out were that the machines will only vote for seven candidates instead of nine, where the buttons turned are all in a vertical row. According to Frank, this would mean a voter attempting to cast a vote for nine men, all of different parties, for a similar office, a situation which might never occur.

When the vertical row of seven buttons was turned, Sklar showed that the machine had jammed and it would require a mechanic to change the votes. This jamming did not occur on the two machines used for demonstration at Harrisburg, because they were specially constructed, Sklar declared.

TAMPERING HINTED

At this point Commissioner C. M. Barr demanded if it would be possible for the machines to have been tampered with. He suggested that the doors of the storage room be kept locked.

Sklar next showed how votes could be indicated on the face of the machine without closing the curtains, thus enabling the ward chairmen to check up on their underlings. He admitted, however, this defect only occurred when electric power failed.

Sklar insisted that the county owns three different varieties of machines, all with their own peculiar defects. The difference is in the internal mechanism. The first 15 are of one kind, then there is an odd model, and the remainder are after the same pattern, he said.

Injured in Pool, Bather Sues County

Allegheny County was made defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Morris Friedman, of Pittsburgh, seeking $50,000 damages for injuries suffered when he used the slide in the South Park swimming pool July 29. He charged negligence because the water was only two feet deep.

Benjamin Ryer, of Wilkinsburg, has filed suit against the City Ice and Fuel Company, Wilkinsburg, for $25,000 damages, declaring two fingers of his right hand were injured when he slipped and fell while getting ice at the plant.

Heavy Steel Loads Scanned by City

Investigation to determine whether the law is being violated by contractors carrying steel beams over city streets to the new Postoffice site at Liberty avenue and Grant street was under way today.

Council President John S. Herron asked that the Public Works and Safety departments investigate, declaring loads totaling more than the 13 tons permitted by local and state law were being carried from the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad yards.

STEAL RECORDS OF SQUIRE

Records of Justice of the Peace Simon Suttner, of Brentwood, were destroyed by a robber who invaded his office early today. Police and detectives are of the opinion that the robber was intent on destroying the papers, as nothing of value was stolen.

Suttner occupies an office with John Lachman, real estate operator, at 2702 Brentwood avenue. Both men left the office last midnight, locking the safe and the office. When they arrived this morning they found the safe door wide open, papers torn and scattered about the floors and desks and some of Suttner's records torn to shreds.

The robber used a pass key and also knew the combination of the safe, police say. Squire Suttner was elected last September on the Independent ticket.

RESERVE POLICY MAKING BANK HISTORY

Backers of Movement Hold That Much of Deflation Could Have Been Averted

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Never before in the history of central banking has management of a nation's money market been attempted on so gigantic a scale as the current open market campaign of the Federal Reserve banks.

Some of the sponsors of the movement believe that, if the system had been as bold a year ago, much of the latter day deflation could have been averted.

Mr. Rukeyser

It is understood that the New York Federal Reserve Bank has been the originator of the policy, and that it has been handicapped by the slowness of the other banks to fall in line. The present policy, to which all assented, is a joint campaign of the 12 Federal Reserve banks.

RESERVES HUGE

Thus far, the campaign has created excess reserves for the member banks of about $275,000,000, and it is thought that the banks will not long continue to keep such funds idle and unproductive.

In setting forth the philosophy behind such a campaign, Lionel D. Edie, monetary economist, in his recent book, "The Banks and Prosperity," said:

"The private bankers' ability to put out credit is conditioned by their reserves. By law or convention, certain ratios of total credit to reserves are in effect in all countries. The private banking system cannot expand excessively unless reserves expand. On the side of contraction, the bankers theoretically could shrink credit indefinitely by piling up idle reserves. But idle reserves are unprofitable, and in practice the bankers move heaven and earth to keep idle reserves at a minimum. The necessity to show profit compels private bankers to strive to keep all their available funds at work all the time. Hence, the private banking system tends not to contract excessively unless reserves contract.

"The reserves of the private banking system can neither expand nor contract excessively unless the central banks acquiesce. This leverage is the source of control which the central banks possess. It is the greatest financial power ever lodged in the hands of men. It puts to shame the powers of kings or military dictators. The world has not yet learned how to use this power well."

TOBACCO, MOVIES HIT

Consumption of cigarets declined in May for the twelfth consecutive month. The 9,000,000 to 11,000,000 unemployed have found it necessary to modify most of their habits which entailed cash outlays. Accordingly, business is finding that many of the so-called depression-proof industries, like the movies and tobacco, proved only depression-lag industries, though of course there is vast variation in the percentage declines in different industries.

Wall Street has been experiencing the dullest days in eight years. Poor corporate earnings and uncertain near-term prospects have reduced the impulse to buy, and completion of necessitous liquidation and restraints on short selling have curtailed the tendency to sell. Meantime, commission brokers have developed lean and hungry looks. Floor members themselves have been responsible for about half the transactions on recent days of maximum dullness.

Numerous smaller business concerns have been asking creditors to defer outstanding debts, and have been offering to pay cash for new merchandise. The same proposition has been offered also by foreigfin customers. In Latin America, for example, importers are taking American merchandise on a C. O. D. basis, while old debts remain unpaid. The creditors have the alternative of putting the debtor into bankruptcy, but that route is not promising under prevailing conditions which make forced liquidation ruinous.

Forbes

Bankers Can Now Furnish More Credit

By B. C. FORBES

TEARING DOWN is a swift, building up a slow process. Panic wiped out billions in a handclap. Reflation will restore billions to values, but not in a handclap.

More letters received by this column discuss credit than any other subject. The idea has taken possession of the country that confidence cannot be restored without more credit, that revival is impossible without freer lending, that prices cannot rise until "money" is made more plentiful.

Mr. Forbes

Complaints pour in that bankers won't lend; bankers—at least leading city bankers—claim they are eager to find trustworthy borrowers.

A lucid explanation of why the process of expansion is slow is supplied by the Midland Bank, one of Britain's gigantic financial instituttions. Thus:

"It is an unfortunate fact that while credit contraction has quick results—forcing producers and traders to fling their products on the markets—an expansion policy is much slower to take effect. Deflation imposes a rapid check on borrowing, and therefore on production and enterprise.

"On the other hand, an increase in the lending capacity of the banks is not immediately availed of by industry and trade, because they have first to see a fair prospect of profit arising from the transactions for the financing of which they can now more readily obtain accommodation.

"Confidence, quickly and rudely shaken under the influence of deflation, has to be regained to the point where borrowing for expansion of business operations and capital development is considered worth while. It is useless to provide credit before it is actually needed. Paradoxically enough, the actual provision of credit itself, by degrees, creates the need for its employment."

This much, happily, can be said: Our bankers are no longer in the grip of panic. Neither are depositors. Monetary conditions now are such that all sound city banks can meet legitimate credit demands—thanks to cessation of withdrawals by hoarders, the buttressing done by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the easy-money policy aggressively pursued by the Federal Reserve, and now the drying up of gold exports.

Banking bedrock having been touched, and deflation having been drastically thorough-going in commodities and raw materials and securities, surely it should be possible for more bankers and borrowers to get together to set in motion recuperative activities.

ONE AMERICAN chamber of commerce is supplying its city with paper currency, following the closing of its banks. President H. Jensen, of the Raymond Chamber of Commerce, Raymond, Wash., writes:

"We enclose herewith a $1 bill of our 'oyster money.' When our two merged banks failed we decided to issue our own money.

"The holder of bank certificates assigns his claim to our organization, and 'oyster money' for 10 per cent of his claim is given him. When the first bank dividend is declared, we will redeem the oyster money.

BROOKLYN - MANHATTAN Transit Company's bankers should immediately and fully explain their dilatory attitude, because the public can't understand why a company reporting such ample earnings should not be readily supplied with funds. The uncertainty has caused security losses far in excess of the amount immediately involved.

Bankers cannot afford to rest unresistingly under suspicions. Mistrust and misunderstandings are already altogether too disconcertingly rife.

FRISCO'S LOAN REQUEST CUT

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(INS.)—The St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad today filed an amended application with the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce its proposed loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from $9,364,808 to $4,390,086.

The elimination of $5,974,722 from the original application was due to the fact that the date of payment of certain bank loans, due July 1, has been extended.

The loan now sought will be used for these purposes: $908,248 for taxes; $2,481,838 for interest on prior lien mortgage bonds, and $1,000,000 for an increase in working capital, which the road said it urgently required.

The road said that pursuant to an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission it has prepared a plan to effect a substantial reduction in its fixed interest charges and will present the plan for formal approval about July 1. No details of the plan were given in today's application for a reduction in its proposed loan.

Persistent Buying Noted In U. S. Government Long-Term Bonds

Bond traders are not a little surprised by the persistence of the current demand for domestic government bonds, particularly the longer term issues. Reserve operations in the federal market are not especially large at the moment, but close observers contend that the shortening of central bank buying is quite adequately offset by the appearance of real investment demand, much of it calling for blocks of $20,000 to $50,000. A marked shift in favor of the long term issues, is the feature of the market, with considerable switching out of shorter maturities by interests who had favored the latter during the period of the heavy gold exodus.

Close watch was kept on International Shoe in consequence of gossip that "interesting developments" might be expected in that issue. The stock has been the center of several bitter struggles marketwise and has frequently been referred to as one of the most secretly "pegged" issues on the board. Reports had it that those who have been sponsoring the issue contemplated retreat from their position, but there was a disposition to take such gossip with a grain of salt upon realization of the position of shorts in the issue.

A. H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, sailed last night for London to attend a meeting of the German Stillhaltung, or "standstill," credit committee. This committee represents world bank creditors of Germany. The London session is to be the first of a series of meetings scheduled from time to time to determine Germany's ability to make any further payments on account. The stillhaltung agreement was extended early this year to continue through 1932. Under it, Germany was granted a delay in repaying her short term debt until next year. About 100 American banks, through their representatives on the international committee, are party to the agreement.

Consolidation with an eye to curtailment of overhead and consequent savings is not limited these days to corporations. On the contrary it is the trend in most directions and no less so in Wall street than elsewhere. There is already a good deal of speculation in the financial community relative to the changes which will take place in the brokerage field with the turn of the half year. At least three firm mergers of substantial proportions are believed in prospect on July 1, and the list may be somewhat larger as brokers see ways and means of surviving the present trials.

Interest in foreign affairs naturally switched to the Geneva conference, where reactions to the President's proposal were quickly forthcoming, especially from the French. Wall street feels that events on the international stage may have an important influence on sentiment this summer, but just at present appears to have adopted a policy of watchful waiting. Meanwhile, activity in the stock market has subsided to a level which even a year ago would have been regarded as fantastically low.

William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry Company, returning from a three weeks' trip abroad, said that he found conditions in England greatly improved, and business doing better. This he attributes to the confidence which the people have placed in their government. In Germany, however, Mr. Woodin said he found conditions bad. Mr. Woodin thinks that an improvement cannot be expected in domestic conditions until the confidence of small investors is restored. This, he believes, is going on now, but he does not expect in any event to see any improvement discerned until fall.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Crawl Up

Local Market Quiet

STOCKS AGAIN PUSH SLOWLY ONWARD

Little Interest Displayed In Either Side of Market; Specialties Lead Upturn

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP.) — The stock market found it somewhat easier to advance than to decline today, but there was little interest in either side of the market.

Further selling in American Can in the morning wiped out early gains and unsettled the list for a time, but shares again turned upward after midday. Tobaccos and miscellaneous specialties led the movement. Trading remained in extremely light volume.

National Distillers Products and Crown Cork and Seal were bid up a point or more, presumably in anticipation of a repeal plank in the Democratic platform. Similar gains appeared in American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Case, McKeesport, Allied Chemical, Public Service of New Jersey, and B-M-T. Substantial fractional advances were made by such issues as American Telephone, General Foods, Borden, Consolidated Gas, American Water Works and United States Steel. In the morning setback, American Can lost 1⅜, to register a new low at 32½, and a number of preferred issues were lower.

Uncertainty over dividend action next week on American Can, Allied Chemical and Santa Fe, made traders cautious. Brokerage comment reflected a confusing mixture of sentiment. The signs of support accorded the list as it approached its old lows, however, were regarded as encouraging. The action of the Senate in accepting the $500,000,000 public works bond proposal may have been responsible for the slight deterioration in the recently firm market for government bonds, but on the whole Wall street seemed reconciled to a substantial volume of government financing during the coming year. The adjournment of Congress, however, is still impatiently awaited in most quarters.

Sears, Roebuck's sales for the four weeks ended June 18 made a little more favorable comparison with last year than the average of its four-week reports so far this year. For the latest period, sales were off 18.8 per cent, against 20.8 per cent for the entire period since the first of the year. The May railway reports continued to reflect the unsatisfactory conditions with which the carriers are laboring.

WHEAT TURNS REACTIONARY

CHICAGO, June 23.—Grain prices turned upward early today, despite some wavering at the outset. Prospects of a blackrust scare had a bullish influence. In addition, cable advices reported a good business in afloat American hard winter wheat. Opening ¾c off to ⅛c up, wheat subsequently scored gains all around. Corn started unchanged to ¼c higher with a general advance afterward.

Reactions from wheat price upturns carried the market at times to below yesterday's finish. Bears contended that uneasiness about black rust was premature, that the plague appeared every season, and that thus far no damage had been done. Corn and oats were relatively firm, influenced by apparent likelihood of corn export business.

RETURN OF BUC PUNCH ENCOURAGING

THE MOST PLEASING feature of the Pirate victory in the Brooklyn finale, which brought an even break in the 12 games played on the Eastern trip, was the apparent return of the missing Buccaneer punch, with Earl Grace, Gus Suhr and Tony Piet setting the pace in the hitting improvement. In five straight games prior to yesterday, the Rovers made a total of only eight runs, and failed to score more than two tallies in any contest, losing three of the five bouts in consequence. Even such exceptional pitching as the Gibsons have been getting could not be expected to keep the club in the running with so feeble an offensive, and the fact that the Bucs are back in their batting stride makes the outlook for the home stay starting tomorrow much brighter.

Earl Grace

While the hitters were perking up in the field, President Benswanger was helping to put through one of the best bits of legislation that has been credited to the National League in a long time, the regulation requiring the numbering of players by all clubs. It took the old league a long time to follow the American's lead, but better late than never. It's a move that will help the fans to identify the players more readily, and anything that helps the fans is a step in the right direction for the good of the game.

SOME AMERICAN LEAGUERS were at first inclined to believe that Johnny Allen wouldn't last as a winning pitcher for the Yankees, but since the youngster hung up his third shutout and his fifth victory in six games they are willing to concede that he is more than a flash.

Allen is described as an old-fashioned ball player who chews tobacco, and there is something about his mannerisms in the box that suggests Burleigh Grimes. He is of the same ruthless fighting type and fields his position just as well as Grimes, which means as well as any pitcher in baseball.

WITH ANOTHER SERIES just completed without interruption, Brooklyn still stands as the only club in the National League against which the Pirates have succeeded in playing all the games scheduled. One or more meetings with each of the other outfits had to be postponed here or abroad, but the weather man has never interfered with the Pirate-Dodger bookings and nine contests have been cleared off without a slip—four at Forbes Field and five in Brooklyn.

THOUGH THE BUCS did not succeed in winning more games than they lost on the Eastern trip, they played a brand of ball that earned for them much higher respect than rivals had held for them originally. The heads of three Eastern clubs—F. B. York, of Brooklyn; L. C. Ruch, of Philadelphia, and Emil Fuchs, of Boston—besides many other baseball men went so far as to pronounce the Pittsburgh club the best they had seen this year. Quite a change from the early spring, when some of the Eastern dopesters picked the Pirates to finish absolutely last. There has been much comment in the East on the hustle of the Rovers. Manager Gibson had them on their toes and spilling pep even when frequent postponements tended to dim batting eyes and soften muscles.

Dizzy Dean

AFTER THE SECOND beating suffered at his hands this year, the Giants are now in a position to add their testimony that if Dizzy Dean can be kept in his stride he will yet prove one of the most valuable pitchers on the Cardinal staff.

If Dean can be made to buckle down and attend to business in serious fashion, there is no reason why he should not rank among the leading hurlers in the majors. He can serve them up in underhand, side-arm or overhand fashion, has a fine change of pace, as much stuff as any slabman that comes along, and in general possesses everything of a mechanical nature that goes to make up a first-class pitcher.

DEAN'S SHORT BUT dramatic strike against the Cardinal front office is said to have been due to objections to the method the club used in paying him. The plan was to hand him a check twice a month through the whole year and not just through the six months of the playing season.

The system is not new. It was used by the Pittsburgh club in 1916 in the case of Al Mamaux. Mamaux's salary for six months, like Dean's, was divided into 24 checks and distributed over the whole year. The procedure is held to be for the player's own protection, so that he won't find himself broke during the off season.

NATIONAL BOXING ASSOCIATION championships sometimes do not amount to much in the eyes of the fans. There's Tommy Paul, for example. Paul won the N. B. A. featherweight title in the Detroit tournament, but up to that time ring followers on the Coast had never heard of him, and they refused to fall for a fighter without a real reputation. So when Paul boxed Fidel La Barba in Los Angeles, the gate was only $3,300, and as the new champion had a guarantee of $2,500, the promoters came out with a headache. They expressed the belief that La Barba and Baby Arizmendi, without any titles, would have put three times as many persons in the house. Only a week before such a washed up pair as Mushy Callahan and Baby Sal drew $2,400 in the same arena. The club made money because there were no fancy guarantees.

IT ISN'T ONLY the rare form he displayed in winning the British open that leads many to pick Gene Sarazen to win the United States open, starting today over the Fresh Meadow course on Long Island. Golf veterans see in him an ideal combination of qualities, and say no professional player ever possessed a finer all-around equipment. Even mental state is in his favor, they figure, by reason of his comfortable financial circumstances.

As one pro manager puts it: "Sarazen has all the shots, the distance, the nerve, the heart, and, above all, in these days when most pros are worrying as to whether they can win enough cash prizes to keep the wolf away, Gene is well fixed and not bothered by the wolf. It's a great thing not to have to worry about the food, rent, taxes and other expenses. Sarazen has a big edge on most of the other pros in that way."

ONE GREAT GOLFER of the past who is being figured far less seriously than usual as a winning possibility in the American open is Walter Hagen. Walter won the big tournament in 1914 and 1921, and, tied with Fred McLeod, finished second to Jim Barnes in 1921, but he is thought to have passed his peak.

Jose Jurado

A close observer who has been watching Hagen's form says he still hits the ball just as well as ever off the tee and through the fairway, but his putting touch is gone. And putting was his forte. Now he has the jumps on the green, and the fine edge that wins championships has vanished.

AMONG THE COLORFUL entrants whose work will command a lot of attention as the tournament progresses is Jose Jurado, golfing trouper of the Argentine. Jurado is one of the game's most remarkable players. With comparatively little tournament experience he has been open champion of the Argentine for seven years, and twice came within an ace of winning the British open. A surging gallery upset him on the last nine holes in 1928, and last year he lost out to Tommy Armour by only a single stroke. In four British opens, or a total of 16 rounds, he averaged practically 75 per round.

FRESH MEADOW COUNTRY CLUB, FLUSHING, N. Y., June 23.—(AP.)—Leo Diegel shot a sparkling round of 73, three over par, in a stiff wind today, to take the lead for the first 18 holes of the American open golf championship.

Gene Sarazen, the British open king, and Billy Burke, the defending American champion, finished together in Diegel's wake, Sarazen with a good 74 and Burke with a somewhat shaky 75.

Jose Jurado, Argentine ace, lost a great chance to move into the lead by shooting into the rough on the homecoming journey, losing several strokes and winding up with 35-39—74, to put him a stroke behind Diegel. The South American's fine all-round play attracted a big gallery and stamped him a real contender in his first bid for the United States crown.

TED LUTHER CARDS 78

Ted Luther, professional at the Valley Heights Country Club, Oakmont, Pa., won the medal in the Pittsburgh district qualifying test, put together two 39s for a 78.

Each of the champions missed a chance to overhaul Diegel on the incoming nine. Burke's six on the fifteenth was costly. He and Sarazen both bagged birdies on the seventeenth, but Gene then approached short and took a 5 on the par 4 home hole.

Diegel wielded his heavy niblick like a magic wand. Twice he came out of traps dead on the pin, on the third and eighteenth. He also hit a mashie iron out of the sand on the first hole, carrying nearly 150 yards to three feet of the cup. He lost a good chance to equal par by barely missing three short putts.

VON ELM, SMITH TRAIL

Two of the prime favorites, George von Elm, last year's runnerup, and MacDonald Smith, just back from finishing second to Sarazen in the British Open, shot away most of their chances with poor starts. Von Elm, his control and putting away off, finished with 38-41—79, and Smith with 40-40—80.

Tomekichi Miyamoto, Japanese star, with a 10 on the fifth hole, finished with an 82.

Bobby Jones and 1,000 other fans trailed Burke and Sarazen around the course. Withdrawals reduced the field to 144.

Taylor, Haseltine On Seals' Program

Haseltine was interviewed by Paul G. Sullivan, secretary of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, and Taylor by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Miss Marian Salmon, Herb McGee and Julius Levin also participated.

Gehringer Hurt In Auto Accident

DETROIT, June 23.—(AP.)—Bruises he suffered last night when his automobile crashed into a viaduct guard rail will keep Charley Gehringer, second baseman for the Detroit Tigers, out of today's game with the Boston Red Sox.

Gehringer was confined to bed at his home today, although he is not seriously injured.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE TALLEST CHURCH—Ulm, in Germany, was a great commercial metropolis in the Fourteenth Century. It used to be said that the money of the Ulm ruled the world. In 1377, the burgers conceived the plan of the boldest structure of the Middle Ages, the famous Munster of Ulm. The Munster is the tallest ecclesiastical edifice in the world, and its spire rises to a height of 528 feet, 2 inches. To explain this old architectural wonder, there is a local legend to the effect that a bird building its nest served the ancient architects as a model for their building.

Sharkey Won, Verdict of Hernon

John L. Hernon, local boxing promoter, returing today from the Sharkey-Schmeling fight in New York, said he was convinced that Sharkey won the fight easily and that he was at a loss about what all of the hullabaloo over the decision is all about. He said:

"Sitting with some friends, I remarked as the fifteenth round opened that Sharkey was so far ahead on points that the only way he could lose was by a knockout. He fought a very smart fight and clearly outscored Max. From a boxing standpoint, it was the best heavyweight match I've ever seen."

U. S. NET STARS WIN ABROAD

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American tennis champion, today led four other Americans into the final eight of the English tennis championships here today as he defeated Harry Hopman, Australian Davis Cup star, in the third round, 7-5, 6-2, 7-5.

The first major casualty of the day was recorded when Fred Perry, British star, defeated John Van Ryn, of New Jersey, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

Prior to Van Ryn's defeat, the remainder of the Americans in the men's singles had marched onward. Sidney Wood, defending champion, defeated Arnold Gentine, of France, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2; Frank X. Shields did away with E. D. Andrews, of New Zealand, 4-6, 13-15, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2; Wilmer Allison downed R. Miki, Japan, 6-4, 6-0, 2-6, 6-1, and Gregory Mangin defeater E. R. Avory, of Britain, 7-5, 6-1, 6-4.

Among the women, Sarah Palfrey and Helen Jacobs, both Americans, scored triumphs. Miss Palfrey defeated Miss O. L. Webb, of England, 6-2, 6-3. Miss Jacobs eliminated Mrs. Shepherd-Barron, of England, 6-2, 6-2. Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke, of Stamford, Conn., bowed to Doris Metaxa, of France, 6-4, 3-6, 3-6.

Fight Results

At Meyers Bowl, North Braddock—Kid Chocolate defeated Johnny Farr, 10 rounds; Battling Bulahan received referee's decision over Tiger (Kid) Walker, 6 rounds; Jimmy Belmont knocked out Pinky Kaufman, 4 rounds; Steve Senich defeated Fritzie Zivic, 6 rounds; Max Zilling defeated Packy McFarland, 6 rounds.

HINT OF 'FIX' IN SHARKEY DECISION

Many of the partisans—and Sharkey was not without his supporters—had witnessed the bout. Those who did not attend were swayed by their reactions to the radio account which was broadcast on the NBC's largest fight network and so spread the argumen that was heard throughout the land. In smaller measure, depending upon the size of the community, the same sentiments were reflected that made New York seethe with fight talk.

JACOBS ON WARPATH

Meanwhile Jacobs continued his diatribe against members of the commission for selection of officials to whom he objected and backed it up with a formal demand that the boxing authorities "right a wrong" and expedite a return match.

He declared, however, that he believed the decision was based upon the honest and fair-minded judgment of the judges and denied reports that either he or Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn of New York, intended taking any action.

BOXING THREATENED

Flynn denied statements attributed to him to the effect that he would recommend repeal of the boxing law to put "an end to the boxing racket."

Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, who was a ringside spectator, telephoned Schmeling's suite. He said:

"If I were the Governor of New York, I would kill boxing."

"You didn't get that kind of a deal with Stribling in Cleveland last year."

Mayor Jimmy Walker's sentiments were forcibly expressed at the ringside just after the fight. The author of the Walker boxing law said he was astounded at the decision. Interviewed by a German press reporter, who was translating opinions of noted persons for short wave radio transmission to Germany, the Mayor said:

"It was rotten."
"Shall I quote you?"
"You may. It ought to sound great in German."

FINAL ROUND DECIDES

A check of the scoring cards of the officials develops that it was Sharkey's rally in the final round that gave him the decision that has brought about all of the furore as a nasty aftermath of the fight. Had Judge George Kelly agreed with his associate judge, Charles F. Mathison, and scored the round for Schmeling, Maxie would have received his decision and there would have been no necessity to consult the vote of Gunboat Smith, the referee, who also scored the bout for Sharkey.

A consensus of official opinion as expressed in the 45 individual-round scores makes the battle a draw, with Sharkey and Schmel-

PIRATES BUY PADDEN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pittsburgh Pirates today announced that they had exercised the option they held on the services of Catcher Tommy Padden. As a result of the transaction Padden now becomes the permanenty property of the Pirates. He was obtained several weeks ago from the Jersey City Club of the International League, with the consent of the New York Yankees, who owned the youngster.

The Pirates returned home from their first Eastern trip today with a record of six victories and six defeats. They took the final game of the series from the Dodgers yesterday, 7-6.

Tomorrow they open a four-game series with the Cincinnati Reds, winding up the engagement at Forbes Field with a double-header on Saturday. Seven members of the Reds, who, like the Pirates, are enjoying an open date, arrived here today. Eppa Rixey, whose two victories of the season have been scored at the Pirates' expense, was in the vanguard and likely will oppose the Bucs in the opener tomorrow.

Children up to 12 years of age will be admitted free to tomorrow's game, this being the Knothole Gang's second day.

Larry French and Joe Shaute, who started yesterday's game in Brooklyn, were unable to finish. Spencer replaced French in the eighth, while Quinn, Moore and Clark also saw duty for the Dodgers.

Earl Grace hit a home run with two mates on the bases in the second. Wilson hit two homers for the Dodgers, his second coming with two mates on the sacks.

Proves new TYDOL leads 17 gasolines in anti-knock quality

Electric Ear GIVES VERDICT
With amazing new sound-recording equipment, engineers triple-check true knock-rating of 17 gasolines on the road... New Anti-Knock TYDOL wins.

YOU'RE looking at the most revealing and accurate road-test ever made of anti-knock quality. It's the first test of its kind ever run.

It's a knock-test that's down to earth. Made on the road. Made on the hills where your own car knocks.

17 non-ethyl gasolines were bought at roadside stations. They were tested in the same car, under uniform conditions of speed, load and grade. And the new Sound Meter—the amazingly sensitive "Electric Ear"—listened in . . . caught the faintest ping and the loudest pound . . . And, for the first time, registered the facts about anti-knock quality under actual road conditions.

The New Anti-Knock TYDOL won its place at the head of the list. Because actual anti-knock quality has been built into it. Because its thrust of power has been smoothed and silenced at the refinery. Because millions have been spent to give it premium performance at no extra cost. Compare it today with any gasoline. And you'll convince yourself that it has every extra-fare quality—except the price.

Dempsey Scores Decision Giving Sharkey Title

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—(AP.)—Disapproval of the decision which transferred the heavyweight title from Max Schmeling to Jack Sharkey was expressed here by Jack Dempsey, former champion. Dempsey, who beat Sharkey in 1927, said:

"As I get it, Sharkey was pasted good. The verdict doesn't do him a bit of good and it does the German no harm. I believe Sharkey emerges more unpopular than ever. Not that it is his fault, but the experts seem to be unanimous in stating that the wrong man's hand was raised.

"I know better than to judge fights from radio description, but when so many fight writers string with Schmeling, it looks like somebody booted one along the line.

"If Schmeling's manager was suspicious of Gunboat Smith in the referee's role why did he stand for him? He says he knew a week ago that something was wrong. Well, then, why didn't he stand pat against such a referee and refuse to go on? That's what I would have done."

Asked if he would consider meeting Sharkey in the ring, Dempsey said:

"Fight Sharkey? Yes and no. But on the other hand—"

He dropped the subject.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A scintillant card of racquet jousts looms today as masculine and feminine stars hurtle into quarter-final singles combat of the forty-fourth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships on the gallery rectangles of the Stanton Heights Golf Club. From 11:30 a. m., when Margaret Carspencken, spectacular Morgantown volleyer, takes court against Dorothy Anderson, hard-hitting Butlerite, till 5 p. m., the hour slated for Paul Barber, Sewickley ace, to encounter Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. mainstay and top ranking Pittsburgher, there's no let-up in steady sequence of colorful and promising tilts.

SEEDED STARS WIN

Six of the original octet of seeded stars remain in the man-to-man millings. In the upper half this afternoon, Champion Bill Haseltine, agile Philadelphian, encounters M. C. Rinehart, likewise of the Quaker City, while John O'Loughlin tangles with Barber, who two days ago eliminated Paul Hicks, seventh seeded performer. In the lower sector, E. F. Arkle, Wheeling flash, who forged abreast of the field through downing rangy Hub Rinehart, 6-2, 6-1, in yesterday's lone men's singles seance, meets Leonard Reed, Edgewood exponent of flawless stroke style, with Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Winged Head pile-driver and twice winner of the West Penn crown, battling slashing Sam Harbison, Allegheny County Club crack and runner-up to Haseltine here in 1931.

Yesterday's program, with efforts largely confined to filling out the quarter-final singles brackets, proved rather light. Hub Rinehart, despite frequent speedy touches, lacked the steadiness to match Arkle's unrelenting attack. Three of the quartet of women's singles seeded favorites eased ahead in consecutive sets, Miss Carspecken exhibiting for the first time before a Steel City audience her remarkable front court sharpshooting.

NEAR-UPSET STAGED

The husky Johnson brothers, of New Castle, induced most of the pyrotechnics of the afternoon and in so doing came close to measuring off John O'Loughlin and Arkle. The second seeded men's doubles outfit won, however, 6-3, 7-9, 6-4. The summary:

HINT OF 'FIX' IN TITLE FIGHT

ing getting 20 rounds each and five being called even.

But it did not work out that way. Smith gave Sharkey seven rounds, Schmeling three, and five even. Mathison called 10 for Schmeling, five for Sharkey and none even. So far, the vote was a stand-off. Kelly awarded the first seven rounds to Sharkey and the next seven to Schmeling. He thus came down to the last round with a draw.

MAY MEET AGAIN

Indications today are that Sharkey and Schmeling will meet again, but not until next year. Heavyweight title bouts always are spaced at least a year apart. Sharkey is going to take a vacation. He says that when he does meet Schmeling again it will be under the same financial conditions as existed on Tuesday, when the German demanded and received 42½ per cent of the gate, with Sharkey having to be content with 10 per cent and the opportunity. The New York State Athletic Commission rule is that in championship matches the titleholder is to receive 37½ per cent and the challenger 12½ per cent.

JACOBS IN BAD SPOT

Jacobs is in a bad spot as a result of the sudden dethroning of his champion. When he took Schmeling away from Arthur Bulow, the German who brought Maxie to this country, Schmeling forced him to a hard bargain for a five-year contract. He made Jacobs agree to guarantee him $100,000 per year, with a 50 per cent split on all earnings above that amount.

Jacobs will have a hard time getting out on that agreement without the title as a lure for the money.

Meanwhile Schmeling is undecided about whether to go home to Germany for a rest or to remain here and hope for a break in the way of a third meeting with Sharkey. Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, has offered to let Ernie Schaaf, Sharkey's stablemate, fight Schmeling in a test match, but that's out so far as Schmeling and his manager are concerned.

Madison Square Garden estimated the paid attendance of the fight at 61,900, with gross receipts of $429,000. Sale of motion picture and radio rights will bring the gross receipts to about $474,000.

AIDS HEARST MILK FUND

Profit to the Garden will be about $160,000, of which the Hearst Milk Fund will receive 25 per cent.

Boxing experts, who bitterly attacked the Sharkey verdict after the fight, were more kindly to the former sailor today. After seeing motion pictures of the battle some agreed that Sharkey had, in fact, won the final round and that his showing in the last canto earned him the decision.

It was pointed out sentiment at ringside was for Schmeling, but that beyond the first 10 rows of seats the spectators were strong for Sharkey. The pictures of the fight clearly showed Sharkey outhit Schmeling.

SHARKEY UNWORRIED

BOSTON, June 23.—(INS.)—It was just Jack Sharkey, the Squire of Chestnut Hill, today.

The world's heavyweight championship, which he grasped from the hands of Max Schmeling, of Germany, on Tuesday night temporarily was set aside by "Big Jack" in his palatial home and once again he became a family man.

But Squire Jack let it be known as he sat in his easy chair and puffed away at a pipeful with his wife and three little kiddies, Jackie, Jr., Dorothy and Marilyn, grouped about him and Specky, the heavyweight's setter, at his feet, that he intends to defend the heavyweight title until defeated. He declared:

"I will not retire undefeated."

He pushed a pair of heavy smoke glasses to one side, one lense of which hid a discolored optic received from a right hand smash in the eleventh round. He said:

"I hear a lot of squawks at my winning. But did anyone ever hear me yell when I lost? And they never will hear me yell when I lose the crown. I'll come out on top in this. Just wait and see."

FREEMAN BOXES SALA TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tommy Freeman vs. Lee Sala, and Jackie Wilson vs. Chico Cisneros, 10 rounds each, and Walter Ketchel vs. Ray Jennings and Jack Watson vs. Casey Rhodes, 6 rounds each, Hickey Park, Millvale.
Bucky Lawless vs. Eddie Bojack, Tony Marco vs. Victor Bizyak, and Mickey Felice vs. Joe Burnett, 6 rounds each, Cleveland.

Tommy Freeman and Chico Cisneros, who also are matched to box on the Johnny Risko-Mickey Walker card in Cleveland tomorrow night, headline the weekly boxing show at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight. Whether they plan to fight their hardest here or to save up their best efforts for Cleveland remains to be seen, and the fans are asked to take 'em or leave 'em at their own risk.

John Hernon, promoter of the local show, said today he understood Promoter McGinty, of Cleveland, has substitutes in readiness for both Freeman and Cisneros in the event they are incapacitated here.

Freeman, former welterweight champion of the world, meets Lee Sala, of Donora, who has been winning here consistently in recent starts, while Cisneros, a Mexican featherweight, tangles with Jackie Wilson, flashy local Negro. Both bouts are billed for 10 rounds. Freeman recently upset the dope by beating Buck McTiernan in the same ring.

The new 10 per cent federal tax will apply on tickets for the show, which means that the $1 tickets will sell at $1.10 and the $2 tickets at $2.20. The club requests that patrons try to have the correct change to avoid delay at the ticket windows.

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz will box Johnny Hayes, of Philadelphia, in the main bout at Hickey Park next Thursday night.

Ruby Goldstein, washed-up New York lightweight, meets Young Rudy in one of those special bouts at the Bowl next Monday night, in addition with the 10-rounders between Tony Herrera and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, a return engagement, and between Battling Gizzy and Lew Feldman.

Nat Litfin, Hill featherweight, is back home after three years of campaigning on the coast and in other sectors and will be seen in action here again soon.

The movies of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight which open at Loew's Penn Theater tomorrow for a week's run, are likely to get a big play from the fans in view of the controversy over the merit of the decision that made Sharkey the new heavyweight champion of the world.

Charley Baxter will box an eight-round bout on the Lew Massey-Ray Miller card at Greenlee Park next Wednesday night.

Now that he has been dethroned, Max Schmeling may be matched with Mickey Walker in an elimination for the right to box Jack Sharkey again. Walker recently fought a draw with the new champion.

Buddy McArthur, McKeesport light-heavyweight, will box Champion Maxie Rosenbloom at Fairmont, W. Va., on the night of July 4. The show will be held at South Side Park, which can seat 5,000 fans.

BOOKS FACE FINAL TEST

Fans viewing the sandlot baseball campaign are more than interested in the battle slated for Olympia Park this evening, as Dormont, defending champion in the City League, makes a final effort to put a crimp into the first half title aspirations of the Books. While everything points to a Book victory in the first half race, there still is a mathematical possibility of Dormont gaining the honor.

The Ferris club is scheduled to meet Dormont next Wednesday instead of tomorrow evening at Dormont. Tomorrow is Community Day in Dormont and the game has been postponed.

Ferris goes to Stowe to meet the Geislers this evening; Reliance appears in Bloomfield against the Thomas nine, and Hank Daly takes his Homewood club to the Salt Works to meet the North Siders.

KID CHOCOLATE EASY WINNER

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The gameness of little Johnny Farr, of Cleveland, almost matched the class and showmanship of Kid Chocolate, of Cuba, the world junior-lightweight champion, in the main bout at the Meyers Bowl last night, and, at the finish, the medium-sized crowd had cheers for both victor and vanquished.

Squat little Johnny was overmatched in everything but heart. The Keed was too tall and had too much reach and speed for him and also hit too hard when he chose to cut loose, but, after suffering knockdowns for counts of nine in the second, fifth and eighth rounds, and appearing to be set for a hurried exit from the picture each time, Farr came back to finish up the battle with a flurry of slugging that lasted almost throughout the final round.

AVOIDS KNOCKOUT

Chocolate probably could have won by a knockout had he cared to press his many advantages, but he was content to go along and give the fans a show. The referee, Al Grayber, went to his corner and warned him to cut loose after the fourth round, but the Keed was inclined to taper off following each rally.

The match originally was scheduled for last Monday night, but was prevented by rain. The Keed weighed in at 131 pounds and Farr at 134 at 3 p. m., yesterday.

Tiger (Kid) Walker, Zanesville (O.) Negro junior-lightweight, bested Battling Bulahan, Cleveland Filipino, in a six-round bout put on after the windup, but the judges disagreed and Referee Kennedy awarded the honors to Bulahan. Walker cut both of the Filipino's eyes and piled up a big lead in the first half of the bout. Then he tired and coasted for a couple of rounds, but came back to hold the upper hand again in the final session.

BELMONT STOPS SETUP

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, had a setup in Pinky Kaufman, of New York, a former good welterweight, but now sadly out of condition, in a scheduled 10-round bout before the Chocolate event, and knocked him out late in the fourth round, after dropping him twice for nine in that round and also having him down twice in the second, the bell saving Pinky at the count of four on the second flooring. All but one, Kaufman landed one solid right early in the third to hurt Belmont, but as soon as Jimmy recovered he went on to thump out his hollow victory.

Fritzie Zivic bested Steve Senich in the second bout, but didn't get a vote, with both judges voting for Senich and the referee calling it a draw. Max Elling easily outpunched Packy McFarland in the opener.

Nick A'trock Baseball's Humorist Says:

CLEVELAND, June 23.—I love the way Dizzy Dean just walked right out of the Cardinals' ball club. Dizz looked at his semi-monthly pay check, decided it wasn't enough and scrammed. So far as I can see, his exit didn't create any vacuum and I understand Gabby Street has been able to sleep nights without counting sheep.

Nick Altrock

Lots of weeks when I get a big streak of laughs I figure my pay check isn't heavy enough, but you don't catch Uncle Nick disappearing like the goldfish bowl in Ching Ling Foo's act. Nope, you will still find me at the supper table, saying grace for my meals—especially these days.

It looks to me when Mr. Dean chucked up his job he went from plain Dizzy to plumb Crazy. But it didn't take him long to find his way back.

Tom Ill at Ease After Taking Girls to Gay Party at Dwight's Place

CHAPTER XIV.

Resplendent, Tom arrived at the girls' apartment in time to escort Jennie and Lynn—in Dwight's car—to the party. He leaned back against the upholstery. "This is the life," he said, and added glumly, "Only when you get it you're too old to enjoy it."

Lynn said, laughing: "David Dwight isn't too old; he isn't old at all. You have such comic ideas about age, Tom. Anybody over 30 looks like Methuselah to you."

Tom digested this in an unhappy silence. She didn't think Dwight old, then. Well, he wasn't, of course. But he was too old for Lynn.

Jennie shook out her black and white flounces. She looked very handsome, hair like daffodils, eyes like bluebells. Lynn's old onyx-and-gold earrings. She said, "We're in for a large evening, I think."

Lynn wore white. Jennie had grunted, observing her, as, dressed and ready, she swung away from the mirror, "You need something startling. If you tied a blue sash around you now, you'd look like first prize at a baby party. Give me your jewel box."

"I haven't any jewels. Just the old stuff grandmother left me."

"That's just what I want. How about the garnets? Knock 'em dead. That's what you need; you'll look virginal, quaint and sophisticated all at once. Here they are. Try 'em on."

JENNIE APPROVES

A garnet necklace set in intricate gold. Earrings, heavily encrusted, and two wide bracelets. "There," said Jennie, standing back, "that's what you needed. You looked like orange juice, straight, before. Granny's garnets put the kick into it." She handed Lynn a bright lipstick. "Tone up the little old mouth to match the antiques in color and you'll lay 'em in the aisles like a row of prewar stingers!"

"Gee," said Tom, staring, upon his entrance, "you look swell, Lynn." He added courteously, "And you, too, Jennie."

"Never mind me," said Jennie complacently. "I know how I look."

"Haven't you got a lot of lipstick on?" was Tom's next, and natural, remark, his eyes on Lynn's brilliant mouth.

Lynn said, worried, "Perhaps. More than usual, anyway, but with this white dress—" She started for the bedroom, but Jennie caught her arm.

"Leave the face as it is," she ordered. "Remember, Tom isn't married to you yet. You're just right as you are."

So, lipstick and all, Lynn went to the party.

TOM ILL AT EASE

Wilkins opened the door, with a special smile for Lynn. The big room was filled with people. The loveliest frocks; the prettiest girls. "I feel like a poor relation," Lynn whispered to Jennie as they mounted the steps to the dressing room. Tom having disappeared in Wilkins' wake.

The room contained more women. Smoke, laughter, powder clouds, heavy perfume, the smell of cosmetics.

When they had descended the stairs Dwight detached himself from a group around the fireplace and came forward to meet them. He took Jennie's hand in his and measured her with a cool, smiling glance, while Lynn murmured the introductions.

"Delightful of you to come, Miss Le Grande," he said formally, but his eyes danced.

"Jennie to you," was Jennie's generous response.

"Of course Jennie to me." He turned to Lynn, and now his eyes were not smiling nor were they cool. "Where's the lucky young man?" he wanted to know.

"There he is, Tom, oh, Tom!" called Lynn, turning to see Tom standing by the door, very tall, very broad, very young, ill at ease, with the sulky expression of the small boy who finds the party not quite up to his expectations.

THEATRICAL CROWD

Tom came over quickly. Women turned to watch him walk across the floor not with his host's feline tread, but with the light step of perfect balance and vitality. He and Dwight shook hands and murmured conventionalities.

"It will be, now," said Dwight, smiling, his hand lightly on Lynn's arm. "Let's circulate, shall we?"

Lynn couldn't remember half the names. Later, the theatrical crowd arrived, straight from their dressing rooms. And there was also Lillian James, the motion picture ingenue who had shot into stardom and was now making a new picture on Long Island. There was Mark Manners, the illustrator. There was George Fane, juvenile lead in "Let's Be Silly," and Marise Marr, Ziegfeld's loveliest, and Babe Leonard, who wrote stark tales of the submerged ten millions and lived on Park avenue from the proceeds. There were dozens of others, all gay, all friendly.

There was dancing, singing, with obliging artists doing impromptu turns. There was Gwen Hammond singing her latest, most melancholy song, and "Brownie" Bird, star of "Mulatto Madness," singing her famous version of "St. Louis Blues." There was, very late, Sonny Carter and his gold-plated saxophone and one turn of hired talent, the three adagio dancers who had held all Manhattan breathless recently. And of course an orchestra.

Things to eat, things to drink, things to smoke; couples out on the terrace, whispering, swinging idly in the great swings, leaning on the parapet in the sweet spring night; laughter and the ceaseless murmur of voices.

It was 2 o'clock and the party was well under way when Dwight gently but firmly detached Lynn from George Fane, with whom she was dancing; and after taking her twice about the room, stopped by the terrace doors and led her outside.

"Sure you're warm enough? Shall I send for a wrap?" he asked.

"No, it's heavenly out here," she said, looking over the terrace wall, drawing in deep breaths of the night wind, the subtle fragrance of green growing things.

"Did I annoy you taking you away from Fane? I annoyed him; that was obvious."

"I hardly think so. He'll find another audience," she laughed. "He was telling me he couldn't get a break, the women stars were always so jealous"

"He's a conceited ass but a good youngster," Dwight told her indifferently, "even if he does break all the feminine hearts across the footlights."

Synopsis

Lynn Harding, young and pretty, is ambitious for a career in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company. She loves Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the vice presidents, but will not marry him, feeling they both must make their careers first. Then Lynn meets David Dwight, a prominent lawyer, through Sarah Dennet, her chief at the bank. Twenty years ago he had been Sarah's fiance. When he married a woman of wealth and position, Sarah was broken-hearted, but she finally found contentment in her work. Dwight is attracted to Lynn and invites her and Sarah to his apartment for dinner. Lynn's roommate, Jennie Le Grande, a model, warns her that Dwight is dangerous. SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Saturday the youngsters of the McKeesport Memorial Chapter of the Junior Komic Club are going to have a dog show.

Last Saturday the annual Sewickley dog show was held at the Allegheny Country Club by the society matrons and debutantes of Pittsburgh. So, boys and girls who own dogs and those who love dogs—and those who don't — bring your dog if you own one or come to the Memorial Theater Saturday and see all the different kinds of dogs and "muts" owned by the members of this chapter.

Once Overs

—By J. J. Mundy—

Growers of flowers know that plants bear better if the flowers are kept picked.

One must be an intelligent picker so as not to do damage to the plants.

But extensive growers of flowers who have time to keep them picked could do a lot of good by distributing them among the less fortunate, who have little opportunity to enjoy such beauty.

In all large cities there are many thousands of children whose hearts would be gladdened by such gifts.

Also it is a fine thing to deliver flowers to shut-ins, unable to go where they might enjoy the sight of flowers.

Congressman Frisby to Discard Vest to Get Nudists' Vote.

Editor's Note—The national political situation is briefly this: Nudists everywhere are willing to support Congressman Frisby for the presidential nomination. While he appreciates the chance to become leader of the Nudists, Mr. Frisby is fearful that he will annoy the people who are opposed to nudism. Today he has issued a hand bill to clarify the confusion. His statemen follows:

"Dear one and all! I am not mad at anybody. I am simply marking time. Nudists everywhere demand that I be their leader. I am always willing to lead, and care not a snap of my finger for danger, but if I am to be the friend of all humanity, I want all humanity to adopt nudism before I declare myself. In other words, I want to promote nudism for the nudists, and at the same time advocate plenty of clothing for the others. At present I will go without my vest, to show my loyalty to the nudists. At the same time I will wear both belt and suspenders to indicate I am conservative. Yours for safe and sane nudism, plenty of sunshine and protection against sudden changes of weather.

"Horace Walpole Frisby."

Bond Sale Needed

Emergency Measures Must Be Taken By City To Carry Relief Until State Aid Starts

Opposition to the sale of $800,000 of bonds by the city for unemployment relief purposes is unjustified. The Allegheny County Emergency Association has asked City Council to authorize the marketing of this portion of a $3,000,000 issue approved by voters at the April primary for food, clothing and shelter for the destitute. Another issue of $2,000,000 was approved for work relief. Neither of these issues was to be sold unless all other sources of relief should be exhausted.

Those who object to the sale of a portion of these bonds claim that the emergency for which the bonds were intended has not arrived. They point to the fact that a special session of the Legislature will provide state relief within a short time so that the sale of bonds by the city will not be needed.

This attitude does not indicate a sufficient knowledge of the facts. A special session of the Legislature has been called to provide state relief. But the last available funds in this city will be exhausted by August 11. The time required for the Legislature to take action and for the final relief of funds indicates that November 3 will be the earliest possible date at which state aid may be expected. The $800,000 will be needed to bridge this gap and also to guard against the element of uncertainty about the exact amount of state help which can be expected.

The program laid out by the conference held under Gov. Pinchot's direction previous to calling the special session does not specify the amounts to be appropriated.

Grand Jury Probe Ordered

Court Directs That Evidence of Crookedness in County Affairs Be Looked Into.

A grand jury probe of indicated irregularities in the transaction of county business has been ordered by Judge Elder W. Marshall. For some time an audit of county affairs has been under way, and there have been disclosed some things that appear amazing even in this community, long past the stage of expecting all of its servants to be "on the up and up." Witnesses have told of county gasoline that has "disappeared," of payroll padding, of materials and labor of the county being used for the improvement of property owned by political leaders, and of waste and inefficiency in the use of materials and labor on work that really was done for the county.

Of course, the smoke that proves there is a fire often turns into a fog in official investigations, nevertheless it is pleasing to note that District Attorney Andrew T. Park is alert in this matter, and has gone to the extent of seizing some county records. Yet, it seems a shame that his official duties should be so largely concerned with fiscal affairs of the county and city (Kline and Succop), which should be orderly at all times, when there is so much of a violent criminal nature that is badly in need of being cleaned up.

Names have been mentioned in the investigation that has been carried on, but the names of the parties against whom charges may rest, if any, will scarcely be made public until the grand jury makes its presentation. Whatever its hearings may develop, there has already appeared enough evidence to cause a demand that the County Commissioners come to the decision that it is up to them to be veritable "watchdogs of the treasury" at all times.

Sermons in Stones--Rice

"It can be done."

That is a fine, courageous slogan that used to be much more in evidence than it is now in this down-in-the-dumps period, when everybody appears to think that nothing in the way of accomplishment is possible.

"It can be done," is called to mind by the feat of Ernest L. Blystone, of Ardara, who engraved 2,860 letters on a grain of rice to win the second prize in the Robert L. Ripley "Believe-It-Or-Not" contest. The letters were those forming the word "coin," which was etched on such a small thing as a grain of rice no less than 715 times.

This accomplishment, of course, is valueless except as an illustration of the skill, patience and perseverance that man is capable of demonstrating.

Also, as a moral lesson, it looms large. Doing what Mr. Blystone has done would be impossible, perhaps, for any other man, because he, no doubt, has augmented a special knack by long practice. But everyone of us can perfect ourselves in what we can do so we can do it better.

Again, it points out that the seemingly impossible can be done. That would be a fine thought to get into our minds individually and collectively just now. We are in a tough spot, but we can pull ourselves out—with proper determination.

To Honor Washington

Public Spirit Will Make Building of Colossal Statue On Mt. Washington Possible.

Through the gifts and assistance of Pittsburgh business and professional interests, the bi-centennial anniversary of the birth of George Washington will be observed in a novel manner in this city.

The erection of a colossal plaster statue of Washington, 100 feet high, is planned on the crest of Mt. Washington overlooking Wood street.

Frank Vittor, the sculptor, has done well in getting away from the solemn representation of Washington in his later years with which we are so familiar. The father of his country is to be shown as a young man in the garb of a pioneer holding the crude surveyor's instruments which he carried over the Alleghenies on his first trip to the wilderness of Western Pennsylvania.

A splendid public spirit has been shown in making the construction of the temporary statue possible. The artist has donated his model without charge; the Builders Exchange has obtained contributions of the necessary materials and labor; and the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania will provide technical advice.

If Washington could look from Mt. Washington today and compare modern Pittsburgh with the virgin forests that first met his eye he would wonder why we are talking about a depression.

Bunkers on the Love-Course

The average man is so afraid of skidding into matrimony, that he sprinkles the path of romance with tacks instead of with flowers, and keeps both hands on the wheel and both eyes on the traffic signals.

* * *

Many a girl, who thinks that she is getting a strong, masterful caveman along with her wedding ring, discovers later that she has just gotten a spoiled imitation of "Peck's Bad Boy," to worry over.

* * *

Nothing makes a man such a bitter womanhater as to discover that the girl he was just playing around with "to kill time" has beaten him to it and gotten another heart-interest, first.

A man simply cannot understand why a woman enjoys going to bargain sales, when she hasn't a penny with which to buy anything. But, good gracious! Even a "straw vote" has its kick.

Many a woman feels that fate is awfully hard on her, because she can't have this year's model limousine, when she ought to be thanking Heaven that she has this year's model ham-and-eggs.

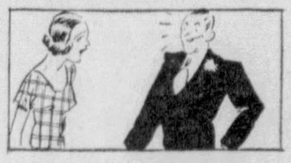
No matter how much a woman may admire her husband, it always astonishes her to discover that another woman regards as a dashing Don Juan, the plain John whose feet she has been putting in mustard water and whose diet she has been watching for ten or a dozen years.



This will never be a Woman's World, so long as a man can go over his face with a safety-razor, give his hair a couple of licks with the brush, stick a flower in his button-hole and look as dolled up as a woman who has spent two hours at a beauty parlor and two more getting into her evening clothes.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 23.—The world in quick recession has beached a vast army of ladies-for-sale. As prodigals of love and thriftless of gold they were airily irresponsible and attuned to startling grandeur. Now there is no way to turn. They have no cashably honest talent and gentlemen friends are stony.

During the past three crumbling years they drifted from deluxe apartments to cheap hotels, walk-up flats and finally shabby rooming houses. Theirs was a prosperity depending entirely upon a rising market. No class is so benefited by life's come easy, go easy motif.

Hundreds, turning to love balm suits and other cagey chantage, find shysters now ask enormous advances, knowing defendants are not able to pay. With assets mostly jewels, they find, too, a deplorable market for such baubles. Many pawn shops are now refusing pledges.

In 1929, a sociological survey revealed some 20,000 nesting in apartments renting at $10,000 a year and more. They had chauffeured cars, charge accounts and French maids. Their tragedy in the business of living was largely in their isolation.

The theatrical collapse brings odd shifts. Two featured dancers of musical comedy are teamed in a sister act in a dollar dinner cabaret. An $800 a week comedian of five years ago is a disguised comic in continuous burlesque. A capable actress of middle years is a governess to three children in a Long Island home and a master of ceremony is a cashier in an upper Broadway restaurant.

Upper Riverside Drive in the cool of the summer evening has the manner of the maple-lined residential street in a small town. Life floats along like a smoke-ring. Everybody seems freshly dressed to sit on the stone parapet and the benches. Young lovers are in a close huddle, old men nod and women knit. Children roll hoops, ride bicycles and dogs yip in frolic. It is difficult to imagine that a few blocks from where the Hudson idles down to the sea is the terrifying energy of Broadway.

Near the tennis court across from that sharp-angled spire that is the Medical Center I came upon a pair of the friendliest white rabbits in captivity. They hopped out of a hedge within easy reach of the Boston in frantic leash. Then with amazing naivete they jumped along our trail for a block. Now if they had been squirrels! Finally someone whistled, in the manner of calling a dog, and they streaked back toward the tennis court.

And on a bench near Inspiration Point a man reading suddenly grew taut and took a lightning look over his shoulder. In a confused semi-apology because we saw it, he said: "This ghost story got me." It recalls Christopher Morley's first reading of Conrad's "The Nigger of the Narcissus." He was on a commutation train absorbing the description of a monstrous wave rolling toward a ship. The train car seemed to go up on end and in sudden panic, he dropped his book, clutched at a neighbor, crying: "God, she's going over!"

Not so startling—but as well remembered—was a reading coincidence during a sleepless night at a tiny jerrybuilt wayside inn on a motor trip through Brittany. Trying vainly to sleep all night, toward dawn I returned to a mystery novel dropped at the bedside. In the proposed murder of a hermit miser in a forest glade an advancing guard was to imitate the morning roundelay of a rooster that all was clear. In the passage describing the wait, an alert champion of daylight immediately outside my window let go a full throated crow, thereby touching off a full throated yelp that was a honey.

It was at this inn, incidentally, that I made a valiant resolve to increase my avoirdupois. Early breakfasters al fresco were discussing the only other guests—my wife and me. Said one: "He looks as though he might be a salesman for sickroom supplies." Since then I've added 22 pounds, too, which certainly made suckers out of them.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

WHY DON'T MEN RESPECT WOMEN'S OPINIONS?

"Why," writes she indignantly, "don't men take women seriously? Why don't they respect a woman's opinion as much as a man's?

"There's my husband, now. He is wonderful to me in most ways. He always boasts about what a fine housekeeper I am. But if I express an opinion about anything outside of the home, he treats me as if I were a child. Sometimes he tells me outright that I don't know what I'm talking about. Yet he will listen respectfully to any man.

"Now, Miss Robinson, I don't claim to be a highbrow. I am just an average American wife. But I had a good high school education, and I worked in an office and made my own living for three years before I married. Then why shouldn't my husband respect my opinion?"

Listen to women talking—any group of women talking, anywhere. What are they talking about?

PERSONAL MATTERS.

Listen in on women anywhere and, with the exception of small professional or business groups, you will find them discussing these subjects. Interesting topics. All important. But all PERSONAL. Each topic revolving in a narrow circle around the woman herself. Never getting away from the woman herself.

Introduce an IMPERSONAL subject and what happens? It is either disregarded, yawned off or turned into personal channels. The big public problem is interesting only in so far as it immediately affects Bessie and Rose and their intimate circle of family or friends.

Now listen to men—any group of men, anywhere. What are they talking about?

IMPERSONAL AFFAIRS.

Politics. Sports. Shop talk. Automobiles. Unemployment. The six-hour day.

Men, in crowds, talk about things outside themselves. Not necessarily deep talk nor smart talk. Not, perhaps, any more intelligent than the talk between women, but more IMPERSONAL talk. Wider talk.

Talk that reaches out into the life of the world, that looks at things from the world angle. Opinions based on sometning bigger than personal prejudices.

Women think about things PERSONALLY; base their opinions on personal experience, sentiment or prejudice.

There's the difference between woman opinion and man opinion; between the way a woman uses her brains and the way a man uses his brains.

THE BRAINS MAY BE EQUALLY GOOD, BUT IS THE OPINION EQUALLY VALUABLE?

Which opinion would YOU seek if YOU were in need of advise—the opinion of a woman or a man?

Where Are the Gods Of Yesterday?

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

It long has been custom after a battle, even on issues of vital import, for Republicans to swallow their individual convictions and enthusiastically to fall in line for whatever nominee or platform comes from the conventon. This year marks a notable departure. The interview of Nicholas Murray Butler, the observations of Senator Wadsworth, the comments of individual delegates of no special importance, imply an insurgency that may not down. Had the battle last week been left to the party without interference from Mr. Hoover, it would have been different. But the convention literally was manhandled by federal office holders. The Cabinet was there in force. Postmasters galore, revenue officials in number, were marshaled as never before in a national conclave.

The President himself directed the fight from the White House over the telephone. This was not so unusual as the packing of the convention with the official retainers of Mr. Hoover.

Theodore Roosevelt denounced this sort of thing, and when himself in office and seeking renomination, courageously declared against federal office holders going to the convention. Calvin Coolidge expressed his opposition to this sort of thing. Mr. Hoover is different. He always has been.

Hoover Position Is Not In Doubt

The nature of the fight which, contrary to Republican custom, was waged in the open, courageously, has had one effect—it has left no doubt as to the position of Mr. Hoover. The phrasing of the plank on prohibition to permit of a wet interpretation in New York and a dry interpretation in dry territory fails of its purpose—because the forces that were with difficulty overwhelmed by the massed attack of the federal job holders under Mr. Mills' leadership, responding to orders from Mr. Hoover, are now articulate.

The administration has insisted on putting the party on record as favoring federal prohibition and federal domination; and every one knows it.

Hoover Strategy Will not Work

Under these circumstances Mr. Hoover, who converted the White House into Grand Headquarters for the convention, lets it be known that he will be inactive in the campaign. He will be too busy with his official duties. No one believes anything of the sort. Never has a President played politics, or personal politics, more persistently than Mr. Hoover. Because of the highly controversial nature of numerous political questions, the Presidency is to be used as a screen behind which to hide.

That is the strategy—but it will not work.

Not only his record, but his part in the determination of the policies of the convention have made his position perfectly clear on all these matters.

President's Acts Indicate Position

Thus his veto of the tariff act, requiring the opening of negotiations from other nations for the restoration of the foreign markets, now lost to us, clearly indicates what his re-election means.

Thus the prohibition plank he passed upon, after it was written at the dictation of an administration group under the command of Ogden Mills, leaves no doubt of his position on the Eighteenth Amendment.

Thus his bitter hostility to a public works program to put men to work cannot possibly be misinterpreted by the 30,000,000 people involved in the denial of an inalienable right to work.

Liberals, business men and the jobless cannot be deceived in the light of established facts.

Sophistries Will Not Appease Hungry

You cannot satisfy an empty stomach with sophistries and tricks of phrasing; nor satisfy a business man, whose trade is waning to the point of ruin, with a campaign slogan. As never before in our history the masses of the people this year will vote for what they conceive to be their interest.

Last week, talking with scores of Republicans from every section, I found that scarcely any feel the slightest confidence in the possibility of Mr. Hoover's re-election. These views were expressed in private conversation and cannot be ascribed publicly to the speakers. The one and only hope these men expressed was that the Democrats may create a bitter feud next week that may be carried into the campaign.

But a feud among politicians over power will not much interest the 30,000,000 bankrupt people of the farms, the 10,000,000 jobless men, and the 30,000,000 more indirectly crushed by unemployment.

Says Democrats Have All Talent

For years the groundings were impressed by the insistence of Republicans that they had "the only party fit to govern." Mr. Snell, in his speech in the convention, played upon that long since discredited phrase. But Dr. Butler, probably the intellectual leader of the Republicans, has just said:

"The Democrats have a virtual monopoly on presidential timber."

And Elihu Root, for years the intellectual leader of the Republicans, has been quoted:

"What has happened to our party? Twenty-five years ago we had all the talent. Now the Democrats have it all."

In Republican business circles, too, and from the greater portion of the independent press, comes the observation that the nomination of any one of four Democratic aspirants for the presidency would meet the intellectual requirements of the high office.

Wise With Years, Sad With Memories

Practically all the candidates appearing before the convention next week have demonstrated qualities of statesmanship, initiative, courage, executive capacity, the qualities of leadership far beyond the average. The great governors of the country are found among the Democrats, and one looks in vain among the Republican governors today for a man of presidential caliber. Pinchot might be excepted, but he has no standing with his own party.

Where is the Republican Senator of presidential caliber? Gone, all gone, with the exception, perhaps, of Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania; Borah and Norris. Two of these immediately must be eliminated as impossibilities because neither Borah nor Norris carry the flaming torch of regularity. They are great as individualists, not as partisans. Watson, of Indiana, has grown old, and he looms large more as a politician than as a constructive statesman.

A survey of the entire field justifies the conclusions of Root and Butler that in the qualities of leadership in a grave national crisis the historic party that has ruled so many years has failed the country. The scepter has passed to the democracy. There alone is found a real comprehension of the condition of the country, a real capacity for facing the present day realities, real courage, real constructive talent.

That is the reason that both Root and Butler have reached their pessimistic conclusions. In these days of the twilight of the party gods they are wise with years and sad with memories.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Patience

When Patience sought to dwell with me,
I closed and barred the door.
She spoke with sweet humility
To soothe a spirit sore.
She came in such a modest dress,
Her voice so soft and low,
I did not glimpse her loveliness;
Her charm I did not know.
But as the years went marching past
Time brought her back again,
And gently crept she at the last
Into my life's domain.
And now I see her face aright
As, through life's dusk and gloom,
It lights my way like starbeams white
That through the twilight bloom.
